Campaign Funds 'Corrupt'

Douglas Speaks to Packed House

By IAN ARROL
The real cause of political corruption is campaign funds, NDP leader T. C. Douglas told 1,500 in the Royal Theatre Thursday night.

"All matters now labelled political scandals refer to campaign funds," Mr. Douglas said there would not be clean and honest government until legislation is passed.

requiring full and complete disclosure of campaign contributions to all political parties.

THEATRE FILLED

The theatre was filled at 7:45 p.m., 15 minutes before the meeting started. At 7:55 p.m., 100 were still waiting outside the closed doors.

A Student Union Building lounge packed by 180 students, greeted Mr. Douglas when he spoke at 2 p.m. at the University Victoria.

MAIN ISSUE

"The main issue in this election is a crisis of leadership," he told the students.

"I have travelled from the Pacific to the Atlantic four times in this election—and across Canada there is a malaise... no sense of direction," said Mr. Douglas.

NEW ERA

In both speeches, he charged the old-line parties were unaware that "we are in a new era of human history."

"The Industrial Revolution replaced man's muscle with a machine."

"Today, automation and cybernation are replacing man himself as a minder of the machine," he said.

Direction for the new age is needed so that the economy will serve social ends, and not the inhumanity of the market place, he said.

Mr. Douglas gave as means for the advancement of social and economic goals a National Development Corporation.

John D Predicts Tory Majority

By RON COLLISTER
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

CHARLOTTETOWN, P.E.I.—A new, confident John Diefenbaker Thursday predicted he will form a majority government after Nov. 8 and charged that Prime Minister Pearson is now running scared.

The whole Diefenbaker campaign took a new direction as the Tory Tiger, whipped up by a chain of sell-out meetings,

Alaskan A-Blast Off Again

ANCHITKA ISLAND, Alaska (AP)—Explosion of a buried 80,000-ton thermonuclear device was postponed again Thursday because the wind was blowing from the test site toward the control centre seven miles away.

The $10-000,000 test, designed to help distinguish nuclear blast shocks from natural earthquakes, was rescheduled for 2 p.m. PDT today.

seemed to throw the old speech away and go for broke.

Three thousand people urged him on at last night's rally here, with Tory provincial Premier Walter Shaw setting the tone.

LOVE THIS MAN

"Is it any wonder that I love this man?" he said.

"When the Liberals were in, we got little more than nothing."

King-Size 'Its' in Plan

Two-Gemini Rendezvous Next U.S. Space Goal

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson disclosed Thursday an attempt will be made by January to orbit two manned spaceships a few days apart for an unprecedented no-contact rendezvous.

The crews may be able to see one another through the spacecraft windows. But there will be no attempt at docking or other actual contact and no space walks.

Apparently king-sized its encircle the plan.

Officials see a little better than a 50-50 chance of getting a pair of space capsules aloft, each with a two-man crew. But they are citing no odds on manoeuvring them—twice, perhaps—to a point where they may be only feet apart while streaking through space at 18,000 miles an hour.

LONG FLIGHT PLANNED

If all goes well, Gemini 7 and its two-man crew will be rocketed aloft first on a 14-day endurance flight. Then Gemini 6—the craft that failed to get away on a space docking expedition last Monday—will be put up seven or eight days later with two more spacemen.

Royal Pen Will End Executions

LONDON (AP)—The House of Commons completed legislative action Thursday night on a bill to abolish the death penalty for murder in Britain. It now goes to the Queen for her signature.

Final passage of the bill was foreshadowed in the last session of Parliament.

What the Commons did Thursday was adopt some amendments insisted on by the House of Lords. The major one of these was that judges should have discretion in making recommendations about life sentences.

Capital Master Plan Blueprints Downtown Revival

By A. H. MURPHY

If its downtown core is prosperous, Victoria is healthy, so get the people down there and make the business district bright enough to keep them.

This is one of the principal conclusions in the "Over-all Plan for Victoria," released to members of city council Thursday after 18 months' research and study by the Capital Region Planning Board.

Salient suggestions for the city's downtown core:

- Get roads into it.
- Provide plenty of parking in the right places.
- Keep it attractive and alive.

However, downtown is not the sole answer to a healthy city. Victoria's place in the region is exhaustively explored by the 84-page report which was formally received at a regular meeting of city council, and which will be dealt with further at a series of meetings opening with a dinner conference soon.

The importance of the region to the area is underlined by a table which shows that of 17 cities, Victoria has the lowest percentage of population compared to the surrounding metropolitan areas.

There is no single answer to

the health of a city, the report shows. It is a meld of parking, zoning, public works, capital spending and many other factors.

The over-all program, as envisaged by the report, would cost about $11,000,000.

The plan hinges to some extent on the implementation of the recent massive traffic study, also prepared by the Capital Region Planning Board, which recommends a freeway system from the north into the city and branching off to Victoria West, thus taking heavy traffic off Douglas and Government Streets.

A clear definition of the downtown district by means of zoning, pedestrian malls and perimeter parking is urged. There should be 2,600 more parking spaces by 1981, including the two new parking garages planned by the city.

Fast, frequent bus service to the centre of the city is a must, and an extensive urban renewal program should be undertaken.

This would include rehabilitation of Chinatown and immediate action on the beautification of Bastion Square. Semi-malls would be built on Broad Street, and an easement for pedestrian access along the waterfront south of Johnson Street.

Cathedral Hill precinct would be improved and a lower promenade built below

Diefenbaker Predicts Win

The Tory leader took off after the Prime Minister for a statement that if he (Mr. Pearson) doesn't get a majority in this election, there will be another election in eighteen months.

MADE IN FEAR

This, he snorted, was "an unusual statement made in fear." Mr. Pearson, who, before the election campaign began, said he would rather someone else formed a government than be a minority leader again, was now saying:

"Be careful people. You are about to lose a government. A frightful possibility, he says.

GOING TO STAY

"He says, 'be careful, because if you are not careful, and I get any kind of minority, I am going to stay in office'."

That, Mr. Diefenbaker said, was what Mr. Pearson's statement meant.

The prime minister, he said, was claiming that he (Mr. Diefenbaker) had made a statement that he expected to form a minority government.

MAJORITY

"I have never said that," the Tory leader retorted. "At any time, either indirectly or at all."

"We intend, with only an additional 40 seats to bring about a majority government that will give Canada strength, power and decisiveness in the years ahead."

Mr. Diefenbaker scorned Mr. Pearson's appeal for a majority and said:

OLD WHEEL

"No one ever strengthens an old wheel by putting extra spokes in it when the hub's gone."

Mr. Diefenbaker, speaking in his overcoat, heated up the cold arena with one of the most flaming speeches of the campaign. He likened the government to the "man on the flying trapeze."

PRESERVATION

"Out they go, back, in and up, going nowhere, but showing motion all the time."

The Tory party, he declared, stands for the preservation of free enterprise in Canada.

"We believe in assuring Canadians the largest portion of the money they earn."

KNOW BETTER

"We believe that Canadians know better how to spend their money than a government that imposes an 11 per cent sales tax on building material that affects every part of the nation."

The time has come, Mr. Diefenbaker said, to end the Liberal government's 2½ years of floundering and uncertainty.

This was a government that starts off in certain directions and comes back to the same point where it began.

After three earlier speeches in a full day of campaigning, Mr. Diefenbaker cracked into life.

In this province where Confederation began, Mr. Diefenbaker promised that his great national conference to create a made-in-Canada constitution would start right here.

"The first day will take place in Charlottetown, which saw the beginning of Confederation," he said.

POWER, PRESTIGE

"After a few days, it would turn to Quebec and the spirit of 1864-67."

"We in 1966 would join together and out of a community of opinions and dedication to our Canadianism, we will agree on a constitution made by Canadians, in Canada, for Canadians."

"This way we could enter the next 100 years of confederation, with the necessary constitutional changes made, to assure the power and prestige of this country in the next decade."

CAUSEWAY

Mr. Diefenbaker promised that a Tory government would build the causeway linking Prince Edward Island to the mainland over the Northumberland Straits.

"The causeway we brought about, the causeway we promised, the causeway we will build," he said.

Mounting a furious new attack on the 11 per cent sales tax on building materials, Mr. Diefenbaker pointed out that Robert Winters, the Liberal running in York West, also now agrees it is wrong, it is discriminatory.

IT IS WRONG

"Mr. Gordon," he said, "says it is good. Mr. Pearson says it is good. And Pickersgill says anything" good.

But, on the other hand, Mr. Winters, former public works minister in the St. Laurent government, says it is wrong.

Mr. Diefenbaker demanded that Prime Minister Pearson state his policy towards the monarchy, in view of statements by Liberal groups urging abolition.

ABOLISH QUEEN?

"No member of this party is going to stand for the abolition of the Queen," he said.

Mr. Diefenbaker, avoiding scandal and clearly changing gears in this campaign, blistered the prime minister for his "two-nation" policy.

Corruption Traced to Funds to establish loans, partnerships and new industries "to process more of the primary products we have been shipping out."

"We need social capital for schools, libraries, homes for the old, and for recreation. "We have adequate facilities to look after cars, but not hospitals to look after our sick."

The NDP leader told the students he favored abolition of tuition fees for institutions of higher learning.

"Our forefathers gave free public school education. Today's equivalent of yesterday's public school education is higher education."

BIGGER EARNINGS

Mr. Douglas said the government would get its expenditure on education back "several times over" in income tax from those whose earning power had been increased because of increased training.

"Initiative is not sapped through such assistance—it is tapped, as the example of Sweden, Israel and West Germany prove."

Another Swedish example he liked was the country's buying back of its industries from foreign owners.

"Foreign ownership in Sweden used to be 68 per cent. It is now two per cent."

"But such a program for Canada is in the future. "The first job is greater industrial capital to develop new industries."

SUPPORT UN

Asked about Canada's defence role, Mr. Douglas stated: "Supporting the UN."

"Our foreign policy should aim for world government, a world police force, a world court of justice."

Asked if he were to become leader of the opposition, which party would he prefer to see across the way, he said, "I'd like both the old-line parties across the way."

Capital Plan

the Causeway, beginning with the acquisition of the service station at the north end.

Elaborating and buttressing with statistics, the report urges Store and Vancouver Street extensions to the north, and a one-way street system for Quadra-Vancouver as a means of improving access to the downtown area.

To the west, widened Point Ellice and Johnson Street bridges would be linked to a Victoria West freeway. To the south the lower Blanshard improvements would be coupled with the Laurel Point bridge proposed by the traffic study.

To the east would be widening on Fort Street, and Johnson-Pandora one-way pairs.

With reduced automobile traffic in the business core, Douglas Street would be the main fast bus artery into the city. It would have terminals, and would be the main anchor for the downtown retail trade pattern.

The whole plan is premised on the change which has taken place in the city's industrial pattern in the past decade.

Growth in manufacturing has been small, but the economy has been transfused during this decline by the growth of the tourist industry, retirement and government service.

Retail trade will continue to employ more and more people because of the rise in personal income, to some extent due to the massive growth of the tourist industry.

The primary industries of agriculture, mining and fishing will probably fall off or remain static, and secondary industries will bear more and more of the economic burden.

Simple Simon Satisfied

PARKSVILLE—A thief with a weakness for pie broke into the Holiday Cafe early Thursday and in addition to stealing pie off the cafe shelves got away with some $70 in cash from a cigarette machine plus cigarettes and chocolate bars.

The cigarette machine was pried open with a large meat knife taken from the cafe kitchen, and an attempt was also made to open a juke box which only succeeded in damaging the machine.

Entry was gained through a window of the cafe kitchen. The restaurant, which is operated by Mr. and Mrs. Howard Chan, is in a well-lighted area beside the Island Highway on the corner of Craig Street.

Reading Labels Great Help In Avoiding Salt, Sodium

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been told to give up ham, bacon, a certain soft drink and a number of other foods because of swelling in my ankles as a result of too much sodium.

What does a low sodium diet consist of?—MRS. N.G.

A low-sodium diet isn't a matter of "What it consists of," but of what you leave out. And what you leave out is sodium.

For the most part, this means ordinary salt. Bacon, ham and other preserved meats all have a lot of salt, so avoid them—sausage, corned beef, and such. Stick to fresh meats.

NO SALT IN FOOD

Don't put salt in food when you cook it. (This may mean that the rest of the family will have to do a little more salting than usual at the table, but after all, that's a mild inconvenience. It is important for you to avoid salt, which is sodium chloride.)

Don't use salt on your food.

Pickles, relish and such items contain salt. Avoid them. Don't eat anything that you know is salty, potato chips, food cooked with salt.

In some cases, salt-free bread and butter are necessary.

The soft drink you mentioned says on the label that it contains sodium citrate, so that's why it's prohibited. Reading labels will be a help to you. Avoid things with sodium.

This is true of some medicines, too. Your doctor will watch out for the ones he gives you, but it will be up to you to learn about any others. Some of the fizzy ones, as well as powders and tablets taken for headaches, contain sodium.

It is true, of course, that the body needs salt, but ordinary meats, as well as some other foods, contain traces of it.

Therefore, you still get a little even though you use no table salt at all.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can a person have mumps twice on both sides? My son has it again, but everybody tells me a person can have it only once.—W.M.H.

In general, we have mumps only once, and it doesn't matter whether the disease is apparent on one side or both. We still have the disease! However, there are occasional instances, in which a second attack may occur. And there's also the chance that one attack or the other wasn't really mumps, but something else that caused the swelling and soreness.

'Arrogance' Rapped

He said after being on the campaign trail for seven weeks that in his 30 years of political life he has never seen such a high percentage of uncommitted voters.

"I have not encountered any apathy . . . I have never seen such large turnouts or enthusiastic gatherings" but "there is a very large undecided vote and whether it is jelling I wouldn't be in a position to know."

POSITION FLUID

"But I don't think there is any doubt the polls are right when they show the most fluid position I've seen in the 30 years I've been in politics," Mr. Douglas said.

He felt that if a minority government is returned to Ottawa in the Nov. 8 election, the various political parties would "have to sit down and work out an agenda of things we can pass."

STRONG RULE

A minority government would not be a detriment to the nation, he said, adding that "all our recent history proves that a big majority does not necessarily produce a strong government."

He said he was not in a position to predict what showing the Social Credit candidates in B.C. and Alberta will make at the polls.

NO SIGNS

But he added, "I see no signs of any growing support for Social Credit and in two ridings, Cariboo and the Fraser Valley, I see quite a few signs to the contrary."

As for the Liberals and Progressive Conservatives, Mr. Douglas said, "The sooner the old-line parties stop their sham battle and join forces, the sooner we will get unity in Canada."

If one of the old-line parties does win the election, which would he prefer to see in office?

Army Holds Youths

JAKARTA (UPI) — The Indonesian army disclosed Thursday night it was holding 97 members of a Communist youth group that attacked an infantry battalion last week in support of the unsuccessful attempt to overthrow President Sukarno.

Another 92 Communists, six of them women, were under arrest for the murder of six loyal generals, the army announced.

205 DEAD

Announcement of the arrests came amid new disclosures of armed Communist resistance and terrorism that left at least 205 persons dead in east and central Java. The Peking-oriented Indonesian Communist Party has been named by the army as one of the principal forces behind the coup attempt.

Radio Jakarta said the 97 Communist youths were being held in Klaten, Central Java, where they took part in an unsuccessful attack on an infantry battalion post Oct. 23.

WELL TRAINED

Army-controlled information sources said the other 92 under arrest had been trained for three months at Halim Air Force Base, near where the mutilated bodies of the six generals were found.

The source said the Communists were all civilians. The six women received about a dollar a day and a litre of rice for undergoing Communist military training, the source said.

The leaders of the assassination of the generals in the first hours of the coup were still at large, the source said.

RUMORS CONFIRMED

In announcing the arrests, the army confirmed long-rumored reports of anti-government activities.

It said terrorists had killed 205 civilians in central and east Java between Oct. 16 and Oct. 23. The army asserted, however, its control was unchallenged.

The Sukarno government, meanwhile, tried to patch up its strained relations with Red China, its strongest ally before the Oct. 1 coup attempt.

SUBANDRIO QUOTED

Foreign Minister Subandrio was quoted by army-controlled radio Jakarta as saying that "the situation in Jakarta and central Java (the main resistance areas) had become normal lately."

Subandrio, commenting on the results of a top-level palace meeting earlier in the day, also insisted that recent friction would not alter Indonesia's close alliance with Communist China.

IN REVOLUTION

"All incidents should be solved by Indonesia and People's China on the basis of friendship... China should understand that Indonesia was in the wave of her revolution."

Subandrio's comments apparently referred to three Peking protests that Chinese in Indonesia were mistreated in the wave of anti-Communist violence that flared throughout the country when it became evident the Communists played a major role in the attempt to depose Sukarno.

VIOLENCE GOES ON

(Lingering anti-Communist violence was reported in Semarang in northern Java. Radio reports monitored in Kuala Lumpur said anti-coup elements calling themselves "progressive revolutionaries" were kidnapping and killing those who supported the rebels. The radio said at least 70 persons had died.)

The army acknowledged that "elements of terrorist groups" were still at large in central Java and the Jogjakarta area.

MARTIAL LAW

It placed both areas under martial law but insisted there was no danger from the hold-outs.

The army newspaper made the disclosure that 205 civilians had died in central and east Java and said Communist youth, peasant and women's organizations had terrorized the area with arson, kidnapping, theft, roadblocks and sabotage of railroad lines and stations.

ONE INCIDENT

In one incident, Communists tried to kidnap 15 persons in central Java. The army said 54 Communists were killed and eight others captured in the attempt.

In the east Java town of Banjwang, 62 bodies were reported found in three mass graves. The army papers said 104 persons died in east Java in the week ending Oct. 23.

The army information centre also said that on Oct. 23 there was further violence in the central Java city of Bojoll where a Communist "feast" turned into a massacre that left 77 civilians dead and others kidnapped.

Gordon Slams John D Over Pension Hike

SIMCOE, Ont. (CP) — Payment of an additional $25 a month to old age pensioners out of the Canada Pension Plan fund would wreck the contributory retirement pension plan, Finance Minister Gordon said Thursday night.

In a speech to a Liberal campaign meeting here, Mr. Gordon said the proposal made by Progressive Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker, if carried into effect, "would simply scuttle the new Canada Pension Plan."

The Canada Pension Plan was introduced by the Liberal government, Mr. Gordon said, only after "a tough fight and bitter opposition."

When it is in full operation it will mean retirement pensions of up to $14 a month at age 65, plus the present $75-a-month old age pension.

The Conservatives now are promising to raise the $75 rate to $100 and to finance the increase out of the contributory pension plan fund, Mr. Gordon said.

"Canadians should not be deceived as to what this would mean: It would wreck the Canada Pension Plan, he added.

"Conservative members in the last Parliament tried to sabotage the Canada Pension Plan. It is clear they have not stopped trying."

EXTRA PAYMENT
The finance minister said the government recognized $75 a month is insufficient for some pensioners to live on, and so it proposed a Canada assistance plan under which up to $50 more would be paid to pensioners needing it.

"The extra payment would be based on their individual needs. Moreover, the basis of payment will be far different from the present means test; it would not require pensioners who own their own homes, for example, to sell their homes in order to qualify."

IRRESPONSIBLE
"I believe that most Canadians will recognize that this is a much more sensible approach to the real cases of need than the irresponsible promise of the Diefenbaker party which would simply scuttle the new Canada Pension Plan."

Text of Mr. Gordon's speech was given to reporters in advance of delivery.

WINNIPEG (CP)—Trade Minister Sharp says the big new wheat sale to China announced Thursday won't necessarily bring votes to the Liberals in the Nov. 8 federal election because Prairie farmers now feel their wheat will be sold regardless of the government in power.

"But the fact that under this Liberal government more wheat has been sold at higher prices than during any similar period won't do us any harm, either."

STRONG MOVEMENT
Mr. Sharp was questioned at a press conference called to announce an agreement ranging from 112,000,000 to a possible 466,000,000 bushels in three to five years.

He said that while he was uncertain of prospects in the west on his first visit of the campaign, he has been back three times and sees a "strong movement" to Liberals in all three Prairie provinces.

This was difficult to translate in terms of seats, but "where I once hoped for adequate representation from the Prairies, I now feel we may have substantial representation."

OLD LEADERS
A new feature film, The Aurora Salvo, shows Trotsky, as played by an actor, on the eve of the revolution together with Lenin, Stalin and other Bolshevik leaders planning the seizure of power.

Trotsky was then chairman of the Petrograd (now Leningrad) Soviet (municipal council) and a key member of the committee that organized Kerensky's provisional government.

But according to the film he was released today, Trotsky, although in favor of the Bolshevik coup, counseled his associates against haste.

Two other Bolshevik leaders, Grigori Zinoviev and Lev Kamenev, who were shot by Stalin for treason in 1936, also are shown in the film as opposing the Bolshevik revolution.

Political Choice Puzzling

By TOM MITCHELL

OTTAWA (CP)—The parties have spread a wide assortment of political goodies on the counter for the voters to pick over before Nov. 8.

But it's often tough to find the price tag.

As the party in power, the Liberals have been able to time some announcements of specific spending programs to fit in neatly with their appeal to the voters. Just before the election was called, a $2,000,000 grant was announced for a hockey arena-trade centre in Vancouver.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Since the election call Sept. 7 there has been a series of similar government announcements:

- $500,000,000 over 15 years for medical and dental research and training facilities.
- $100,000,000 for a long-term northern roads program.
- $40,000,000 for a university scholarship program over four years.
- A $25,000,000 investment in Nova Scotia's coal industry.

In Vancouver

Roblin On Tour

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba campaigned busily across Vancouver Thursday, carrying a warning that the Liberal government is threatening the structure of Confederation.

He said the threat does not lie in the aspirations of French-speaking Canadians—"many of which we can understand and sympathize with"—nor does it spring from the obvious need for change.

He put it this way to students at the University of British Columbia:

"... What concerns me is the feeling that these problems are being confronted... by a government which does not seem itself to have a clear picture or a sound conception of what it wants Confederation to be."

"Instead we find it presiding like a diplomat over the conflicting views of others, as we come together from time to time. Where we find that the strongest political pressure group is most likely to get its own way."

"This seems to be the Liberal formula for running Canada today. And I for one don't like it."

The Manitoba premier told 225 UBC students he supports party leader John Diefenbaker's call for a national party to discuss national unity. Points of difference could be laid on the table.

He urged policies for regional economic development and outlined the Conservative platform for increased federal aid in university construction costs.

China Wheat Sale May Not Win Votes

• $12,000,000 for Eskimo housing.

But these tangible figures are like the top of the iceberg—much more remains under water.

The Liberals have promised implementation of a medical care insurance program. The government has offered $14 per capita to provinces joining the proposed plan.

This would put the annual federal bill at about $300,000,000.

But many provinces think the $14 will not meet half the per-person cost of such a plan. At the latest federal-provincial health conference, the government gave a commitment to boost the federal payment if this estimate proves too low.

NO PRICE TAG

So it's difficult to say just what the program might cost when put into operation.

New Democrat Leader Douglas hasn't put a price tag on his party's promises to end university tuition fees, institute economic planning, establish a medical care program, spur building of a second trans-Canada highway and improve the position of the farmer. The same is generally true for the wide ranging farm and social welfare programs pledged by the Liberals and Conservatives.

An exception was the promise by Alvin Hamilton, former Conservative agriculture minister, of a $2,000,000 long-term program to reforest 20,000 acres of second-grade farm land in Eastern Canada.

That figure probably loomed large in Social Credit Leader Thompson's mind when he said that promises by Liberals and Conservatives to date in the campaign would mean expenditure of more than $6,000,000,000.

A Liberal-Conservative controversy bubbled up when Prime Minister Pearson tried to put a price tag on Conservative Leader Diefenbaker's pledge of an increase in old age pensions to $100 a month from $75.

Mr. Pearson said this would mean a tab of about $850,000,000 this year, more than the economy could bear. But Mr. Diefenbaker countered, said the prime minister was figuring on $100 a month for those 65 and over but his pledge was for persons 70 and over. This would cost $300,000,000 a year, Mr. Diefenbaker said.

Distinction of mentioning the biggest single figure of the campaign was won handily by Credit Leader Casse. He suggested the Bank of Canada distribute $15,000,000,000 in dividends to Canadians.

This, he says, would make up the difference between the $35-

000,000,000 income of all citizens and the $50,000,000,000 gross national product—total value of the national product—total value of the goods and services. The difference is the GNP.

The Lost Armada

ONE ASPECT of the Canadian economy which is being largely neglected by the majority of today's aspiring parliamentarians is the deleterious effect the non-existence of an ocean merchant fleet is having on the country's international balance of payments.

Although Canada has become one of the top five trading countries in the world, its deep-sea merchantmen can almost be counted on the fingers of the hand, and as a fleet they are incapable of carrying more than five per cent of the nation's overseas trade.

A glance along the docks of any Canadian port will show a display of flags that would do credit to the United Nations Building itself, but few of them will be Canadian.

This means that Canada has a severe adverse balance on its overseas shipping accounts, and that the lucrative business of moving the ever-growing Canadian exports is solidly in the hands of foreign ship-owners.

It is not to be suggested that Canada can expect to balance its ocean freight revenues. If 50 per cent of all Canadian overseas trade were to move in Canadian bottoms, the country's mercantile marine would have to be one of the largest in the world.

But there is no reason why Canada should not make a stronger effort to improve its ocean carrier position.

The last government's removal of the shipbuilding subsidy was a retrogressive move in this direction, but there are other aspects as well. Ships flying the Canadian flag have to abide with wage and work regulations far more generous than those of rival lines registered in other countries and flying flags of convenience.

This makes competition tough, but it is a problem that both the United States and Canada have to face, and it cannot be said that either is making a very good job of tackling it.

It seems strange that two countries which have managed so many things so well should not be able to compete with others in the operation of international shipping.

The danger of having to rely almost exclusively on foreign ships for the continuation of trade is too big a risk to be ignored.

Time for Predictions

ELECTION predictions are rather profitless. But at this point, with only a week remaining for any party to achieve a dramatic breakthrough, it appears to political observers across the nation that the Nov. 8 returns will show:

Greater Conservative strength in Ontario; Liberal gains in Quebec; and Pretty much the same pattern of representation for the rest of Canada as in the last Parliament.

The Commons count in the last election gave the Conservatives 60 and the Liberals just 30 seats outside of Ontario and Quebec.

In the western provinces Mr. Diefenbaker won 45 seats against Mr. Pearson's 10, and the Yukon and Northwest Territories returned two more Tories.

But in the 85 constituencies of Ontario the Liberals reversed the trend in the west and elected 52 against the Conservatives' 26; and in Quebec they won 47 against the Tories' 10 of the 75 seats contested. Assuming the pundits are correct and that only in Ontario and Quebec is there much likelihood of significant change, it is interesting to speculate.

The Ontario observers seem to feel that the swing will be of benefit to Mr. Diefenbaker and that he may win as many seats in this election as Mr. Pearson won in the last. That would give him 52 and, providing the New Democrats lose or gain no more than the seven seats they held, the Liberals would have 26.

Key to the situation, then, would be in Quebec's hands.

To form a government the Liberals would have to gain substantially there both from the Conservatives, who held 10 seats, and the Creditistes, who held 18.

In any event it is obvious that the Liberal caucus would be dominated by Quebec members in a critical period of our history when the French-English collision of interests must be resolved and vital decisions taken with respect to the constitution of the country.

And domination by Quebec would be even more absolute in a Liberal government. This would be undesirable, even dangerous to the national interest.

However, the "undecided" vote, which at last count was still a formidable figure, particularly in Quebec, can throw all calculations into a cocked hat. Disgruntled electors may demand that Mr. Pearson pay a penalty for lack of perspicacity and discrimination and thus provide Mr. Diefenbaker with the support he needs to form a government in spite of the expected Liberal majority in Quebec.

Not for Crowing

TRAFFIC STATISTICS for September show a marked decrease in accidents and consequent injuries and property damage, and because this period coincided with the strike that closed the beer parlors Mr. Gagliardi hails this as proof of his standing argument that liquor and not speed is the main cause of road deaths and injuries.

The motor licence branch, with which the highways minister has long been at odds, is not so sure of this; neither are local police officers who point to the dry weather of September as possibly being a factor in the rate of accidents.

There is always the fact also that alcoholic beverages other than beer were procurable as usual during the beer strike. Not every driver convicted of impaired driving owes his difficulties to beer. By no means.

In any case the September decrease in road accidents is a matter for welcome all round, not for claiming vindication for a point of view. Mr. Gagliardi is scarcely the least biased person on the subject of traffic accidents, having a predilection for speedy travel that has got him personally into trouble more than once.

The toll of highway accidents rests on both the counts concerned, drinking and speed. It is obvious to anyone that the greater the speed the greater the risks and the greater the damage that follows an accident. And car drivers who are cold sober or even never touch alcohol in any form become involved in accidents as well as do those whose faculties may be impaired by liquor.

If in fact it was the beer strike that lessened the September toll so much the better for that month. But the highways minister should not use this as excuse for his preference for higher speed limits on B.C. roads.

"Another nice mess to be mopped up."

U.S. Protest Movement

'Highly Dedicated Fringe Effort'

By PATRICK O'DONOVAN from Washington

TEN thousand people demonstrated against the war in Viet Nam—similar demonstrations in most of the major universities in this country—the great university campus of Berkeley in California in open revolt—a professor at Rutgers University declaring he hopes that the Viet Cong will win—draft cards burned in public—special seminars teaching students how to avoid being called up for military service by posing as homosexuals or going for their medical examinations drugged—all these are aspects of the protest movement that has shaken and surprised the United States.

The president is reportedly appalled. Senators from both parties have expressed their horror. One described the demonstrations as "tantamount to insurrection." The attorney general has announced that the justice department will investigate the whole movement. Mr. J. Edgar Hoover, semi-sacred head of the FBI, has no doubts. He said the movement is composed of "unhappy characters of pliable minds and persuasion who eagerly attach themselves to any 'cause' which runs counter to convention." He also, and inevitably, found the Communist Party at work on "a program that has seen skilled hucksters of atheism and treason appear at scores of colleges and universities, from New York to California."

On the other side, the demonstrations have been bannered in Peking and Hanoi. Commentators here believe that the North Vietnamese will resist negotiation has been opened by the belief that U.S. public opinion has turned against the war in much the same way that French opinion turned against the struggle in Algeria, and before that in Indo-China. It is not easy to achieve a real balance in appraising this movement.

To begin with, the United States of today is not used to this sort of thing. In recent years, foreign affairs and the reflex resistance to Communism have simply not been matters for public debate. Of course, such divisions have happened before in U.S. history. During the civil war there were bloody riots in New York City protesting against the call-up in the North. But now this protest comes as something new and inexplicably unpatriotic to most Americans.

But it is also true that most Americans are curiously uncertain about this war. They are uncertain of its intentions and purpose, too, of its legality. There is no real enthusiasm and no flag-waving. It is being conducted as a matter of stern national duty. And a great sigh of national relief will go up if it can be ended without national disgrace. The vast majority is, therefore, in no mood for a public emotional rejection of the protest.

But the opposition to the war is only a minority, and is composed largely of junior professors and students. This is predictable. These are the young, the articulate, the more privileged, and they feel the sort of disillusionment with almost everything that a segment of the young in almost every free country shows today.

These are the people who are averse to the struggle for Negro civil rights—though there are only few Negroes in this protest. They take part in the sit-ins and the teach-ins. Their very clothes tend to be a gesture of rebellion. They sport a high proportion of beards. And their opponents have come down heavily on their allegedly unwashed aspect. But again the majority of them are ordinary U.S. students who will end in the insurance companies and in suburbs.

As far as there is any real leadership to the movement, it seems to lie in a Chicago-based organization called "Students for a Democratic Society." It has about 10,000 dues-paying members. It is not Communist and claims that the issue of Communism is utterly irrelevant. Its president is 30 years old and its national secretary, 22. Though volatile and opinionated, neither seems to be notably eccentric.

They have no official support from the churches. Indeed, they have been condemned by the Quakers as non-moral because they have opposed one war instead of the whole conception of war. The Quakers do not believe that this is a legitimate moral movement, but a political one.

A national opinion poll shows that Labor is 11 points ahead of the Conservative Opposition—which is interpreted as a potential parliamentary majority of about 160 seats in the Commons if the nation went to the polls today. The government's declared refusal to call a snap election can only be attributed to its confidence in its legislative program without one.

The question is how. Herbert Bowden, the leader of the House of Commons, has told correspondents that Parliament is ready to grant sick MPs the right to vote by proxy. Careful arrangements along this principle, he said, can prevent Parliament from becoming either a slot machine or a casualty station.

A nation-wide public opinion survey suggests that the majority of Britons would welcome the change. "Do you think," the questioners asked, "that MPs who are seriously ill should or should not be allowed to register their votes in debates without having to attend the House of Commons to vote in person?" Predictably, 57 per cent of those questioned (mainly Labor supporters) were in favor; 33 per cent (mainly Conservative supporters) were against; and 10 per cent (mainly Liberal supporters) were undecided.

The "Weekly News Letter," published by the Conservative Central Office, comments: "Human compassion is one matter—but the political advantage of a party sustained in office by a majority of two is quite another. MPs are not merely technical devices for recording votes."

The forthcoming fall by-elections stand to endanger what majority Labor has in the House of Commons.

"But I am perfectly certain that the country does not want another election," the prime minister has declared.

"They gave us a job to do and they want to see us get on with that job, particularly the completing of the task of getting Britain's payments into balance and completing the program of social reform set out in our manifesto."

There is no real witch-hunt against them. There is no trace of McCarthyism in the public or official reaction to them. The FBI statements and the justice department investigations are inevitable, and are being conducted strictly within the spirit of the law.

It is true that there is a new law on the statute book that prescribes a maximum penalty of up to five years and a $10,000 fine for the destruction of a draft card. This is a piece of legislation that notifies a young man of his eligibility and category in the conscription process. Young men are called up in carefully graded categories that are designed to cause a minimum of hardship and a minimum disruption of education and family life. The cards have to be kept by the draftees. One student has already been charged with burning his card, and is awaiting trial. At least three other students have burned their cards. One young man has been sentenced to three years' imprisonment for refusing to appear before his local draft board. There will be many more cases like this.

But this highly-dedicated fringe effort is not now really effective on the national scene. It has not affected the war effort, or the politicians or the soldiers, slugging it out in Viet Nam. In most European countries it would be tolerated and left to the normal working of the police. Now in universities and chambers of commerce the counter-reaction is being planned. This will take the form of demonstrations, of declarations of support, of blood-voting, even of sending Christmas cards to soldiers in the field. It is not likely to be as spectacular as the protest. But the essential fact is that the protest, whether it is right or wrong, is still the work of a minority that could not—if it tried—elect a single candidate to Congress.

Effect of War Lingers

South Korea's 'Take-Off' Year

By SIMON BLACKALL from Seoul

SCARS of war are not immediately evident in South Korea, but 12 years after the fighting ended, the effect of war is still being felt. The two largest cities, the drift of population from the land to the cities continues. Officially unemployment is 10 per cent of the labor force, but officials will admit privately that it may be higher.

For the visitor who arrives in Seoul straight from Japan with its traffic jams, garly neon signs, and the overall evidence of wealth, the difference comes as a shock. Most of Korea's problems, as in other divided nations, stem from the fact that the division was made without regard to the economy of the country. Thus the South had no industry to support its development, while the North had little agriculture or which to feed itself. The situation in the South was further aggravated by an enormous influx of refugees from the North. It now had to support 25 million people, or more than two-thirds of the entire population of the country. The churches built with aid poured in from foreign charitable organizations are still the largest buildings in most towns.

Given a stable government, freedom from political worries, and enough economic assistance, South Korea could have made much progress in the past 12 years. But only aid has been present and much of that has been misused. A student revolt followed by a coup d'etat slowed development, and the constant problem of war (no peace treaty has been signed with North Korea, and South Korea was not a signatory to the armistice agreement) causes 40 per cent of the national budget to be spent on defence.

Today South Korea has 600,000 men under arms, most of them deployed along the cease-fire line. Since 1953, when the armistice was signed, the number of United Nations forces stationed in Korea has gradually diminished to the point where, apart from the 60,000 troops of the American 8th Army, small Thai and Turkish contingents are all that are left.

Although occasional skirmishes do break out along the cease-fire line, resulting in wild and abusive charges and counter-charges, Panmunjom today is largely a tourist site for the curious. The South Koreans are constructing a pavilion within the armistice compound to show off the products of their industry and folklore.

Unwilling as it may be, the U.S. military presence is often a cause and source of continued corruption and black marketeering, since an American private soldier with facilities for tax-free shopping earns more than a Korean major-general. Speeches by government ministers exhorting officials to "root out" corruption are commonplace, but the effect is minimal.

Yet the future does at last seem to hold a slim ray of hope for the average Korean. To those who were here at the end of the fighting or even as recently as five years ago, the improvements are distinctly noticeable. Those essential industries of a nation—power, fertilizer, cement, and so on—are beginning to keep pace with the basic demands of the economy, and the government has officially designated 1966 as "take off" year.

Trade and prices are being liberalized and foreign investment encouraged by lavish tax concessions and the prospect of a cheap labor market. Already the Japanese, who find that increasing labor costs are pricing the goods out of export markets, are sending cotton goods to Korea to be finished before re-exporting them. And largely as a result of this sort of trade, the value of Korean exports has shot up and is now almost double the 1962 figure.

Great store is set upon the normalization treaty with Japan which, after 14 years of negotiation, now only awaits ratification by the Japanese Diet. Business circles believe it will open up the Korean labor market and give a great boost to the economy of the country.

But the gains are there. In the last 10 years, for example, the number of schools have increased by over 25 per cent and the number of hospitals has more than doubled. More and more industries are appearing throughout the country. Perhaps 1966 will indeed become the "take-off" year for Korea.

Never Turn Your Back

See What Happens!

By CASSANDRA from London

YOU aren't turn your back for a moment. Seven weeks ago this transmitter had a technical breakdown and, while readers were mistakenly trying to adjust their receivers, things went gravely wrong.

On a prior occasion when I closed down (it was for five years in the early 1940s) and when my advice was missing, what they started by breaking embassy windows nearly ended with nuclear-minded citizens chucking radio-active continents at each other.

Beware the silence of Cassandra. You just can't trust this world on its own. See what happened during the past seven weeks.

A man named Smith took on and defied almost the whole world including the British Commonwealth, the United Nations and every non-white man on earth. About 2,000,000 human beings—or two out of every three people alive.

He was warned by the most powerful nation on earth, the United States. He stood no hope of support from the mighty Soviet Union. From Ottawa to Canberra, from Bonn to Rome, they said in Chesterton's immortal words: "Chuck it, Smith!"

And if this column had been transmitting, I too, would have said: "Chuck it, Smith."

But Smith didn't chuck it. With his handful of tobacco farmers he defied the opinions of more people than Genghis Khan, Alexander the Great, Julius Caesar, Napoleon Bonaparte and Adolf Hitler combined ever had mobilized against them.

Somehow this rangy Rhodesian with his twangy drawl and his curious dignity even managed to rally a considerable number of supporters in this country, including that aristocratic turnaway Lord Salisbury. All from a man called Smith. Jones or Brown would have been better but not Smith.

We prefer our rebels to be Dukes like Mommouth, though I must admit we ungratefully headed him on Tower Hill only nine days after he was routed at Sedgemoor.

Then, while my advice was temporarily silenced, there occurred one of the most senseless battles in this senseless century—the war between India and Pakistan, which General Laksmana from Delhi described in honeyed terms as "the twenty-two days affair we had with Pakistan."

They crippled each other's armor, winged each other's air force, nearly let the Chinese through the back door and decided nothing.

It seems a long time since Gandhi's India, with the pre-mat, the passive resistance and the idealism rebuking the rest of the world. Now they just set about each other like the wicked West.

One tiny thing I am grateful for — we shall be spared the endless lecturing humbug of Krishna Menon.

Again without my permission, or even knowledge, Rolls-Royce suddenly upped and produced their magnificent new Silver Shadow car a fortnight ago.

When I say "suddenly" I mean that they had only been working on it for 10 years.

The most regal model, which is reserved for royalty and heads of state, costs about £12,000, and has a separate air-conditioning system for the chauffeur.

That's the way to keep the servants below stairs on wheels. There was another nice touch designer had been questioned as to whether he was quite sure that Rolls knew exactly what their clients wanted. He was quite sure and he added that anyway they knew "most of their customers by their Christian names."

A nasty slip that. Surely he meant titles.

I nearly fell out of bed laughing when I heard on the radio that at the Brighton Conservative conference Mr. Edward Heath had made one particularly emotional reference to the British Commonwealth. He described how he had been moved recently by the words put to one of Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance" marches.

"Wider still and wider, Shall thy bounds be set."

This was at the exact moment that Mr. Smith was trying to prise Rhodesia loose from our loving arms.

The disintegration of what was once the British Empire has been the greatest political explosion in history.

From the spectacular exit of India, in 1947, to what is happening in Africa now, 27 other nations have left us—the majority of them cussing us heartily on the way.

There is not room here to list them, but in Palestine, Cyprus, South Africa, Ghana, Jamaica, Zanzibar, Burma and Ceylon, just to mention a few, they were heartily glad to escape from us. All this may be a matter of regret, but to pretend that it hasn't happened is very high up in the stratosphere of cloud-cuckoo-land.

Bitterness and Fury Hit Israeli Campaign

By EDWIN ROTH, from Tel Aviv, Israel
Special to the Colonist

With his famous white mane flaring out aggressively, Israel's founding father and first prime minister, David Ben-Gurion has begun his 80th year by causing the fiercest, most passionate, most sensational—and dirtiest—election battle since the state of Israel was proclaimed by him in 1948.

Israel elects a new parliament next Tuesday, and never in its 17 years of modern statehood has it had an election with such bitterness and fury.

Two years after he resigned voluntarily from the job of prime minister, Ben-Gurion is fighting this election battle against his successor who was his party comrade for many decades—70-year-old Prime Minister Levi Eshkol.

Only three months ago, Ben-Gurion split the Mapai (labor party) which he himself led for more than 40 years—and which has governed Israel since the Jewish state's creation.

He founded a new opposition socialist party named Rafi to fight this election.

By founding Rafi and fighting against the immensely powerful Mapai machine which he himself created, Ben-Gurion has unleashed a fratricidal struggle with all the terrible bitterness and all the hurtful insults of a family fight.

The reason for Ben-Gurion's sensational behavior is a fascinating mixture of history, politics, justice and Ben-Gurion's personal psychology.

Lavon Affair

Ben-Gurion was Mapai prime minister from modern Israel's creation on May 15, 1948, until he voluntarily resigned in 1953—and again from 1955 until his second voluntary resignation in 1963, when his Mapai finance minister Levi Eshkol became prime minister. Between 1963 and 1965, Ben-Gurion often publicly attacked Eshkol, who achieved surprising popularity.

Last year, Ben-Gurion began to demand that Eshkol should re-open the very embarrassing "Lavon Affair", which had started in 1953 when Defence Minister Pinhas Lavon was dismissed.

Its basis was a "black" Israel secret service operation to sabotage American-owned buildings in Cairo, so that America should believe this had been done by Egyptians. Lavon was finally cleared of all personal responsibility for it by a cabinet inquiry in 1961.

What Ben-Gurion demanded was legally, judicially, and morally right—but politically and diplomatically undesirable.

Brilliant Aides

With Ben-Gurion into Rafi went 50-year-old General Moshe Dayan, the former commander-in-chief who had left active army service to become Mapai agriculture minister, and 42-year-old Shimon Peres, the brilliant former defence minister, director and afterwards deputy defence minister. They were always Ben-Gurion's closest personal associates.

Israel's parliament has 120 members, all of them elected by proportional representation. This means that Israelis vote for party lists, with the parliamentary seats allotted nationally in exact proportion to the votes received by each list.

Of the 17 different party lists contesting the present election—including a small list of violently anti-Israel and pro-Nasser Arabs—only six parties are really significant.

The party program of Rafi demands electoral reform to give Israel an election system like that of Britain and Canada, with individual candidates elected in constituencies. This would make really small parties impossible.

Sturdy, stubborn Ben-Gurion is fighting this campaign with incredible energy and dynamism. He drives through heat and dust, speaking at countless meetings, and many of his speeches last for two hours or more.

His style is that of a teacher—pointing out, lecturing, preaching, teaching. His speeches are filled with endless repetitions of historic personal memories.

But he also attacks the faults and corruptions of the entrenched, powerful Mapai machine with devastating inside knowledge.

"Many Latin American countries are corrupt," he says. "In Asia, almost all countries are corrupt. Israel cannot be corrupt."

Dynamic Image

Ben-Gurion's Rafi presents a dynamic image calling for modernism and contrasting sharply with the picture of Eshkol's Mapai as powerful, traditionalist machine politicians.

Many intelligent Israelis and foreign observers who know Israel well, agree with Rafi's description of the Mapai machine.

"What exactly do you want?" I asked Ben-Gurion after one of his election meetings in Tel Aviv.

"I want 61 seats in parliament," he replied. This would mean complete political power, which even Mapai could never achieve under the present system. When I asked Ben-Gurion whether he wanted to be prime minister again, he refused to reply.

Rafi's entire campaign is based on an unrestrained personality and leadership cult. Its posters show Ben-Gurion's picture and call him "the first of the first."

Furiously, Eshkol has turned Mapai's enormous political and financial power against Ben-Gurion. While Rafi is less than three months old and has very little money, Mapai is spending millions of dollars on this campaign, and its economic power enables it to collect huge contributions.

At election times, Mapai has thousands on its payroll. It has printed millions of posters and leaflets, and advertises itself in giant neon lights throughout Israel.

While Ben-Gurion says Eshkol is unfit to govern, and calls Mapai a corrupt, obsolete, boss-ridden machine, Mapai describes Ben-Gurion as leader of a neo-fascist leadership cult. Visiting foreign correspond-

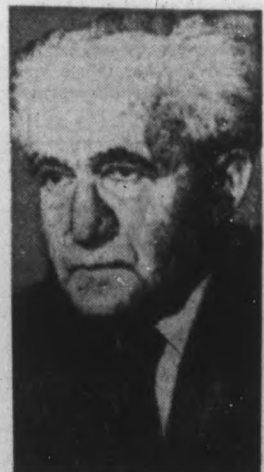

Face-Saving Sought At Summit

ALGIERS (AP)—Diplomatic moves were reported under way Thursday to find a face-saving formula for abandoning the African-Asian summit conference due to open Nov. 5.

China and its supporters have announced they will boycott the summit on the grounds present conditions are unsuitable.

Little more than half the 65 invited countries were represented Thursday and most of the delegates were below foreign minister level.

Conference sources said some non-aligned delegations were having second thoughts about holding a summit without China and were holding private talks to find a way out of the dilemma.

Kashmir

Ceasefire Merely Hiatus?

By SUNDAR RAJAN
From Bombay

Nationalist feelings on both sides of the India-Pakistan frontier are running high once again.

A renewal of the military conflict, this time on a grimmer scale, is considered likely.

The two neighbors agreed to a cease-fire Sept. 27, after 22 days of undeclared war in Kashmir and in the plains of Punjab.

Indians and Pakistanis are both frankly dissatisfied with the cease-fire and there is open talk of an early resumption of hostilities.

After a lull following the cease-fire, commando activity in parts of Kashmir has increased. According to New Delhi, 35 infiltrators were killed in two major engagements in the Poonch and Rajouri areas.

The Indian government also claims to have secured enough evidence to prove hitherto vague allegations that Pakistan is acting in collusion with some opposition groups in the Indian part of Kashmir to subvert its authority.

Just as on last Sept. 6, Kashmir might spark serious trouble once again.

The 22-day undeclared war followed the entry of between 7,000 and 10,000 Pakistani commandos into the Indian-held valley.

According to latest estimates in Srinagar, the Kashmir capital, some 1,500 commandos still are hiding behind the Indian lines.

With India and Pakistan adopting inflexible positions, even a slight miscalculation could provoke a major incident leading to open war.

Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri told a New Delhi meeting that the cease-fire may end "abruptly." He asked his countrymen to be prepared for "a long and bitter fight."

President Ayub Khan of Pakistan has hinted at a "bigger, graver conflagration" if the Kashmir dispute is not speedily resolved.

The two countries have been placed on a "war footing." The national economies are getting increasingly "defence-oriented."

The majority of Indians and Pakistanis seem to be convinced that their national honor is at stake and must be vindicated. Patriotic parades are the order of the day even in the remotest hamlets of the subcontinent.

Shastri and Ayub are under strong domestic pressure not to yield to Western and Soviet pressures to pull back their troops to prewar positions.

BACKGROUND

Unethical Battle

By COLIN CHAPMAN
From London

A wide-ranging, though perhaps unethical battle, is in progress between universities on both sides of the Atlantic for the cream of professional skill—and Britain is having some substantial successes.

Large numbers of professors and other senior academics have been lured from America to help provide the increasing numbers of staff needed for the expansion of higher education.

Obviously it is not high rates of salary that are the attraction. As one ex-Canadian explained: "Britain is attractive in a general sense because there is more political freedom. The pace is Explaining why foreigners are tempted to Britain, Professor Lipsey, an ex-Canadian now teaching in Britain, said: "I was at Vancouver for four years and then two years in Toronto, before going to the London School of Economics. I went back to talk to a summer school in British Columbia, and I found my whole outlook had changed."

"In Britain, the academic has a much better chance of being able to develop at his own speed. In America and Canada young people are under tremendous pressure to get things out. In this sense the British university is nearer to the ideal of being slightly removed from the world, with some time to contemplate."

So although the heavy "brain drain" away from Britain in medicine and science continues, there is a steady drift to Britain of American dons, particularly of those qualified in the humanities, and of Britons returning from abroad.

Some British universities are so short of top staff that they are appointing Americans to high posts without interviewing them first. One new university, Essex, is sending a mission to the U.S. soon to try to persuade three men to take up major posts at Colchester.

Essex's senior assistant registrar, D. W. J. Morrell, said: "We are now having to plan five years ahead, and in some cases we are interviewing two years ahead, asking someone to act in America on our behalf, or it is possible to appoint without an interview if a person is well known."

The Essex "talent scout" off to America is dynamic Canadian-born Prof. R. G. Lipsey, dean of the school of social studies. He is going to the convention of the American Economic Association in New York.

Britain Lures U.S. Brains

"This is the annual labor market over there," he told me. "Everyone is rushing round trying to buy the best people. The key man from all the best schools are there looking for jobs. There will be three men there for whom we are looking."

Didn't Professor Lipsey fear that some British dons would think the Essex approach unethical?

"I hope so," he replied. "The fewer people who try it the better chance we have of getting good staff. Finding staff is now an enormously competitive job. There is a tremendous shortage of people in social studies and economics."

Fifteen of the staff of 113 of the University of Sussex at Brighton who left Britain for appointments abroad have been tempted back. A further 23 are foreigners or commonwealth citizens—13 of them drawn from across the Atlantic.

At Bristol University about one in 10 of those appointed this year came from overseas. Three of them were returning British academics. At Exeter a rather lower percentage of posts went to those with overseas experience.

Thanks to Microelectronics

Machine Catching Up

By ALFRED M. MCCOY

Each of us is aware that we are living in an age of technological revolution. We also know that it is having, and will have, a profound effect on our lives.

It is difficult, however, for the bewildered layman to determine which of the countless advances he reads about are the most important. In looking back 25 years we can select three which have had the greatest impact on mankind: Penicillin, the atomic bomb and the transistor.

Penicillin—and the families of antibiotics which have followed—have freed us from disease to an incredible degree.

The atomic bomb—and, subsequently, the hydrogen bomb—have so altered world affairs that there is a distinct possibility that there may never be another major war.

The transistor made feasible the development and widespread use of digital computers which confront us at every turn. They have played a major role in the advance of automation.

A device now emerging from the laboratory which will have a very great effect on the world is a thing called the integrated circuit. Surprisingly, most people do not seem to be aware of its existence.

What can integrated circuits do? To cite an example familiar to us all, the portable radios of 20 years ago were the size of lunch pails.

With the advent of transistors, they became as small as cigarette packages. When integrated circuits came into more general use, a radio could well be nothing more than a barely noticeable earplug, similar to a small hearing aid.

An integrated circuit is similar to a transistor in that it contains an active amplifying element. It also contains all of the other electronic parts which are used in conjunction with the transistor. The result is a major reduction in size, weight, and power required for a given electronic system.

Most important to us are the changes microelectronics (as integrated circuits are often called) will have on computers. In many cases, such as in satellites, the computers will be smaller.

The more significant application is with the computer which is not particularly smaller, but capable of handling more difficult problems.

The more complex machines are practical not only because the integrated circuits are smaller and lighter and require less power, but, from all indications, because they are far less prone to failures.

The gap between the capability of the mechanical brain and the human brain is closing rapidly.

The new computers will be able to analyze and forecast the world's economic condition, predict accurately the weather months ahead, and diagnose human illnesses.

Calls Jinx Super Sleuths

By EDDY GILMORE
LONDON (AP)—An embarrassed British post office spokesman explained Thursday how the secret headquarters of a new regional crime squad was flooded with calls about food, drink and lodgings.

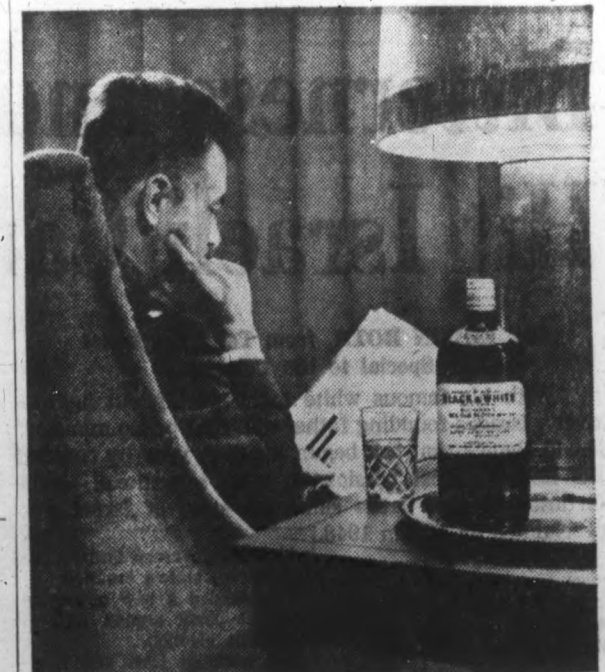

"We are sorry, but it was just one of those things," In Warrington Wednesday, one of Britain's new regional detective centres—designed to deal with crime at lightning speed—started business.

The personnel were hand-picked. The headquarters was given a special building. So as not to lose time by going through the regular police switchboard, the crime squad was given a secret number.

They didn't have to wait long. The first caller asked: "What's on the menu for lunch?"

The second caller asked: "Can you accommodate my bride and me on our honeymoon?"

The third caller inquired: "What time does your bar close?"

Blighted Downtown Area Needs Department Store

A 250,000-foot-square department store with a large parking area is suggested by the Over-all Plan for Victoria for the "blighted" downtown block

Industry's Area Underdeveloped

Much of the Victoria West Industrial reserve is underdeveloped and the waterfront buildings in the southern corner are only partly used. The transport department's marine agency will be moving to Colwood and new developments such as Doman's lumber retail outlet and the new Goodwill Industries plant are secondary rather than basic industry. No immediate changes are recommended in present industrial zoning because the time for change is thought to be 15 or 20 years away.

It is badly in need of revitalization. Reasons for this choice of site include the fact that it is one of the least expensive blocks in the central downtown area. Its frontage is within the pedestrian core and it is 1,000 feet from both Eaton's and Hudson's Bay stores. Centennial Square provides a safe, pleasant route between the Bay and the proposed store. Its parking facility would be only 400 yards from the proposed interchange on the Victoria West freeway, directly across Johnson Street bridge. OBSTACLES SEEN However, there are obstacles to establishment of another downtown department store, which the plan believes is badly needed as an uplift to retail and service business. Land is expensive, and there is difficulty in assembling large sites. Downtown's "vulnerability to north-south interception" is another factor to be overcome.

Hospital Program Grants To Be Extended—John D

Colonist Ottawa Bureau
CHARLOTTETOWN, P.E.I.—As John Diefenbaker campaigned in the cradle of Confederation, he spelled out his party's promises for health, happiness and the pursuit of low interest rates. After a half-day holiday due to fog grounding his plane, he moved briskly into Summerside and explained his party's national health policy at an afternoon rally.

He pledged, for the first time, a five-year extension of the capital grants program for hospital construction. This would expire, unless renewed, in 1976, and Mr. Diefenbaker made it clear that a Tory government would do just that, using the present formula of a three-way split between the federal and provincial governments and the communities.

On the eve of Medicare in one form or another, the need for new hospitals is a major issue, Mr. Diefenbaker is responding to provincial pressure for a clear statement on this program. Premier John Roberts, in a submission to the government on a medical services program in September, called for the extension of the program to 1976. He said that 1,000 new beds must be added annually to meet the pressures on hospitals. In addition, replacing all obsolete beds calls for another 500 beds annually. Speaking to a crowd of 500 at Summerside, Mr. Diefenbaker attacked Health Minister La-

Vic West Freeway Affects James Bay

James Bay, oldest and most historic part of the city, is seen by the "Over-all Plan for Victoria" as the first choice for high-rise apartment outside downtown. At the same time, the plan states, it could be a balanced residential neighborhood, providing a cross-section of housing for varied types of families. Most important proposal affecting the area is the Victoria West freeway, entering by way of bridge or tunnel at Laurel Point. It is suggested that it join an extension of Michigan Street and link directly with Blanshard. Industrial zoning now in force in the west end of James Bay should be removed and adjusted to improve the neighborhood, and a rehabilitation area designated.

'Develop Them'

Victoria Needs Outside Parks

Oak Bay Reeve Allan Cox is chairman of Capital Region Planning Board of B.C.

Development by Victoria of parks outside its borders in order to ease the pressure on Beacon Hill is urged by the new overall plan submitted to city council Thursday. With greater use of cars there is a tendency for families to travel to the outside areas, which Victoria is fortunate to own, rather than enjoy the parks within the municipality. For this reason the parkland outside the city's borders is extremely valuable. DEDICATION URGED The 41 parks within the city limits should be formally dedicated by city bylaw, the plan proposes. The precious three miles of coastline from Ogden Point to Ross Bay, all of which is open to the public, should be carefully guarded. The plan proposes to extend the open coastline at Gonzales Bay and in some parts of the Inner Harbor. Extra waterfrontage is also recommended for Banfield Park and near Lime Bay.

Answer to Health Minister

"Give her your answer," he roared. Miss LaMarsh, he said, was now saying: "I didn't say what I said when I said it. What I meant to say when I didn't say that I wouldn't have said what I said when I did say it."

Mr. Diefenbaker's other promises in the field of health and social security are: ● Medicare without regimentation. He recalled that it was his government that set up the Hall commission that has produced a recommendation for such a plan.

As demanded by all the provincial governments, and rejected by the federal government, mental illness and tuberculosis would be covered in the present national health insurance plan. This, he said, would help the provinces, which currently have responsibility for these two categories of illness. "This is something you asked for," he told P.E.I. Premier Walter Shaw, who was by his side during the day, "and we intend to implement it because it is fair and equitable."

● Mr. Diefenbaker pledged that the old-age pension will be raised from $75 to $100 "without adding one cent to taxes in Canada."

● And he fired up a new deal for war veterans. Their pensions would not be regarded as income in working out their qualifications for veterans' allowances.

Turning to interest rates in Canada, Mr. Diefenbaker said the farmer can now get low interest loans "to buy their homes, to buy their needs."

Interest Rates to Be Cut

"Interest rates will be greatly cut from the present 18 to 32 per cent, existing in some areas."

He had been prevented from flying from Saint John, New Brunswick, where he spoke to the largest rally of any party in the province, because fog prevented the plane from landing. Thursday he was able to take off for Summerside and pick up the itinerary. Five hundred people who had waited three hours for him in an Albert hall, gave him a thunderous reception.

Since John Diefenbaker set out on his campaign September 18, his birthday, he has had a rough time of it. ● On that first day, his plane had to turn back from Toronto when almost on the run-

Wilson Warns Smith

There were no signs of any significant shift that could help break the independence deadlock. Wilson flew here Monday in an effort to forestall Prime Minister Ian Smith from declaring independence unilaterally on behalf of his white minority government. Smith and the British prime minister, who has conferred with 120 white and African Rhodesians since his arrival, met for luncheon talks Thursday.

So far Wilson has been unable to talk either of the two nationalist leaders — Joshua Nkomo and Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole — into softening their demands for immediate African majority rule. There are 4,000,000 Negroes in Rhodesia and fewer than 220,000 whites. The adamant stand of the two African leaders has confronted Wilson with an almost insuperable task in trying to halt the threatened independence declaration by the white government.

and Commerce Minister Loffmark charged Thursday.

Backing up statements he made at a political meeting on the Mainland Tuesday, Mr. Loffmark said on his return to Victoria that port charges at Vancouver are so high ships from the Orient and Europe are unloading in Montreal.

He countered an argument by Vancouver's harbor master Capt. B. D. L. Johnson that high charges are levied only on the first five times a ship enters port each year.

Coastal steamers which make frequent visits to Vancouver are the only ships which benefit from this policy, said Mr. Loffmark.

"Coastal trade is not what we are concerned about. We are concerned about international trade . . . evidence indicates that the port charges at Vancouver are so designed as to discourage imports through that port."

CHEAPER BY TRAIN

A typical freighter stopping at Vancouver has to pay $5,340 in port charges for imports and $4,340 for exports, while port charges at Montreal for either import or export are only $2,925, he said.

"Western Canada is not getting the benefit of the Panama Canal," he said, because "they have so rigged the rates that it's cheaper to ship from Europe to Montreal and by rail overland than it is to go by the canal to the port of Vancouver."

Because of the rate differential it is also cheaper for Japan to deliver automobiles from Yokohama to Montreal via the Panama Canal than from Yokohama to Vancouver, Mr. Loffmark said.

Ships are still leaving Vancouver "loaded to the gunwales," he said, but they are coming in empty because the port charges are $3,415 higher than Montreal.

The trade and commerce minister said the National Harbors Board should reduce its charges to a point where Vancouver harbor is breaking even and neither making nor losing money.

FRONT DOOR

The port of Vancouver showed a $5,000,000 profit from 1960 to 1964, and the port of Montreal suffered a loss of $7,000,000 during the same period, he said.

"If they can stand a $7,000,000 loss in Montreal then they can eliminate the profit here. We should have a front door on the Pacific instead of a back door," Mr. Loffmark said.

Police Grab Irate Father

MANCHESTER (AP) — Five policemen grabbed Terrence Downey today as he tried to attack a woman and a man accused of murdering his 10-year-old daughter, Lesley Ann.

"I'll kill them," Downey shouted as he lunged toward a car carrying Ian Brady, 27, and Myra Hindley, 23. The two had just left a court in Hyde, Cheshire, after being ordered to remain in jail until Nov. 4, when they will again appear on the murder charge.

Lesley's body was found early this month during a massive police search for graves on the desolate Pennine Moors near Manchester.

OTHERS BURIED
Police believe two to six other children, also victims of sadistic orgies, are buried in the area.

A crowd of about 70 booing and hissing women tried to block the cars carrying the two prisoners as the policemen led Downey to a nearby police station to calm him down.

Brady and Miss Hindley were charged with Lesley's murder and Brady was additionally charged with the murder of Edward Evans, 17.

Search parties on the moors turned up the body of John Kilbride, 12, a week ago only 400 yards from where Lesley was found. No charges have been filed in connection with his murder.

Police officers boosted the search force from 70 to 90 men today, but bad weather delayed the yard-by-yard probing near where the two children were found.

WINTER-BUILT HOME

Once again, the Government of Canada is offering this special incentive to increase winter employment by encouraging the construction of Winter-Built houses. Any house certified "Winter-Built" by Federal government inspection will earn you a $500.00 rebate.

HERE'S HOW YOU QUALIFY

- You can build your own home
- You can have it built for you
- You can buy one ready-built
- It can be a single dwelling or multiple structure of not more than four units (each unit qualifies for the $500 incentive).
- Work must not proceed beyond the first floor joist stage before November 15, and the home must be completed before April 15, 1966, except for outside painting and site improvement.

HERE'S WHAT YOU DO

You can pick up a pamphlet containing full details, and registration forms at your National Employment Office, any Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation office, or in post offices where there are no N.E.S. or C.M.H.C. offices. Or, your builder can do this for you. You'll be in your new home by Spring... save rent... make yourself $500.00.

DO IT NOW! Have your home Winter-Built!

Unlisted Stock Stirs Vancouver's Exchange

By HARRY YOUNG
(Business Editor)

Not since the Sphinx winked an inscrutable eye has there been quite so much tension in the local boardrooms as has been engendered during the past few days by the vacillations of the shares in the Pyramid company.

Pyramid is a Vancouver company which has claims alongside the Pine Point Mines on the shores of Great Slave Lake. It is not listed on any stock exchange but its shares trade violently "over-the-counter".

Quotations in a single day have ranged between $5 and $3 a share.

DRILLING STARTED

The company's consulting engineer, Henry Hill, has indicated that the induced polarization survey made on the property looks good, and drilling has started under veils of closely guarded secrecy.

Any day now, the company reports, there may be results of the first assays from the property. The "insider" whisper "it may be today."

Whatever happens a lot of local speculators are holding the stock, and if the stories going around turn out to be true there are going to be a number of new millionaires.

On the other hand, Bill Irwin, B.C. Superintendent of Brokers, who is responsible for keeping an eye on public issues of stocks not listed on the stock exchange is throwing out warnings.

PROMISE

He particularly stresses that no drilling results are yet known and that until they are holders of the stock are gambling on interpretations of various scientific surveys.

A promise has been extracted from the company that it will release its assays to the public as soon as they are available, one at a time if necessary.

CAUSED STOCK FLOP

A statement by Jack Davis, a Vancouver Liberal candidate and parliamentary assistant to the Prime Minister in the last parliament indicates that a new trade pact between Canada and the United States in the forest industries is in the talking stage.

Mr. Davis in an election speech in Squamish gave no details but suggested it would be on the lines of the auto trade pact and that it could be of immense value to both countries.

The investment response to Mr. Davis was hardly so enthusiastic. Shares of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River dropped to $26½, $12 lower than their high of earlier this year, and the shares of B.C. Forest Products and Crown Zellerbach also fell on the news.

SALES UP, PROFITS DOWN

Also depressing the forest industry stocks, was the nine months report of Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. which showed that while sales have mounted earnings are lower.

Net nine months income of Canada Crown were $9,422,000 ($1.26) down 17 per cent from $11,354,000 ($1.52), recorded in the first nine months of 1964. Sales, which included those of S. M. Simpson Ltd., Kelowna, for the first time totalled $120,000,000 up 16 per cent from the $103,794,000 of the previous year.

President Robert G. Rogers said that while there had been a progressive improvement in quarterly net income levels in the current year, the adverse factors of the price of newsprint, wood costs and bad weather conditions prevailed. He expected business to continue at the third quarter level to the end of 1965.

Converted Landing Craft

All-Freight Ferry Service Hailed by Trucking Official

An official of one of the trucking companies which does a heavy volume of business between Vancouver and Victoria says that new all-freight CPR service between the two cities will be of great value to his industry.

As reported in Thursday's Colonist, the CPR has purchased an American Second World War landing craft, and is preparing to convert it into a carrier for trucks and drop trailers.

It is to run once a day between downtown Vancouver and the federal wharf at Sidney.

RATES NOT LOWER

The trucking official said that rates had not yet been discussed, but they would certainly not be lower than were charged by the B.C. ferry service.

"That is not the main concern of the truckers," he said. "We expect to make our savings in other ways. It will be a more convenient service for us at both ends."

He pointed out that the CPR ferry would start from downtown Vancouver, thus cutting out the long haul to Tsawwassen.

In addition, labor costs would be tremendously reduced. Trucks and drop trailers could be left at the terminal and crews would not be required to wait to have them loaded as they do at Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen.

In addition, he said, the CPR would accept trucks and trailers without requiring that they be accompanied on the voyage by a driver.

DRIVER ALONG

The B.C. Ferries insist that a driver accompany all motorized units.

"We shall save a lot in wages, even if the CPR rates are higher than those charged by the government service," he said.

REFITTED HERE

A CPR spokesman said Thursday the ship will be refitted at the company's wharf here. McKeay-Cornack Ltd. shipyard will do the work which includes laying railway tracks in the loading deck, he said.

This will provide for the handling of 25 boxcars. The company at present has rail-loading docks in Vancouver and Nanaimo but not in Victoria.

CAPACITY OF 34

When carrying trailers, the ferry will have a capacity of 34. The vessel will likely leave Vancouver in the evening and return from Sidney early in the morning, making one round trip daily. The crossing will take about 4½ hours.

The vessel was formerly the ARL-10 and 328 feet long.

Pliable Wheat Deal Signed with China

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada has signed a new and flexible wheat agreement with China that could mean a sale of anywhere from 112,000,000 to 466,000,000 bushels in three to five years.

Based on past experience, said Trade Minister Sharp, "I am confident the quantities purchased will be closer to the maximum figure."

He set the value to Canada at from $200,000,000 to $906,500,000. If China goes anywhere near the limit it will be the biggest deal ever concluded by the Canadian wheat board, surpassing the $500,000,000 sale to the Soviet Union in 1963.

LOWER GRADES

Grades were not announced. They will be decided at the time of each individual purchase made under the agreement. The Chinese in the past have preferred the lower grades, of which there is an abundance in this year's Prairie harvest because of leaf rust and autumn rain and snow.

China will pay the going wheat board export rate at the time of each purchase. Lakehead prices Thursday ranged from $1.82½ a bushel for No. 3 northern to $1.72½ for No. 5, compared with $1.94½ for prime No. 1 northern.

BUSHEL WORTH $2

Mr. Sharp has estimated a bushel of wheat is worth $2 in round figures to the Canadian economy because handling and shipping creates employment in addition to returns to the farmer.

The agreement, announced by the wheat board at a press conference attended by Mr. Sharp, works this way:

1. A firm deal has been signed for sale of a minimum of 112,000,000 and a maximum of 466,000,000 bushels in the three years beginning next Aug. 1.

2. Before Next May 1, "consideration will be given" to increasing the quantities involved in the three-year pact to 168,000,000 bushels minimum and 280,000,000 maximum.

3. It may be decided instead to extend the three-year agreement to five years, with a minimum of 280,000,000 and a maximum of 466,000,000 bushels.

CASH, TERMS

In any case, delivery will start at the beginning of the 1965-66 crop year next Aug. 1. The current three-year agreement, under which China has ordered the maximum 187,000,000 bushels, expires next July 31.

Terms are 25 per cent cash with the balance plus interest in 18 months, made possible by a government credit guarantee to the wheat board. Mr. Sharp said a revolving credit level of more than $200,000,000 was required.

As part of the pact, the annual limit on export to Canada from China of sensitive items—mostly textiles—will be raised to $10,000,000 from $7,000,000.

"Canadian producers of sensitive items are protected by individual quota limitations," Mr. Sharp said. "These are to be determined later by agreement between the two parties."

Planners Blast City Manager

By A. H. MURPHY

Young

City manager Dennis Young, described as a man "who lacks training, inclination or competence in the field of planning," should be removed from any supervision of the city's planning department, city council was told Thursday.

A lengthy brief from the Victoria branch of the Community Planning Association of Canada says that proper planning is policy-making and, therefore, outside the jurisdiction of the city manager.

It urges that the director of the city's newly-formed and newly-named planning division be required to report directly to city council.

At present the city is suffering through applications for the post of director. A number of

Competence in Field Questioned

Interviews have been arranged. Seven applicants were chosen for interviews on the basis of a report by the city manager, who worked with the city's personnel department manager.

The brief, presented by the planning association branch president Mrs. B. Levitz Packford, reviews the tumultuous six months which led to the formation of the new department.

The period of conflict was climaxed by the resignation of Roderick Clack, chief of the city's special projects department, and his two assistants, followed by disintegration of the planning division responsible for co-ordination and construction of Centennial Square, among other projects.

One Man's Idea

Referring to the square, the brief is emphatic.

"Although this complex is the work of many hands, it should be remembered that one man had the idea first, developed the design and presented it to city council," the document says.

It adds that when a man of talent (Roderick Clack) appears, "we should honor him with the fullest opportunity to use that talent."

The contention that the idea for Centennial Square originated with Mr. Clack was vigorously denied in city council by Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow.

Mayor's Idea

"I want to put the record straight on this matter," he said. "The idea was Mayor Wilson's and his alone. I remember the occasion very well when he first talked of it."

The document was "received and filed" by council. The brief goes back to the spring of 1962 when a storm arose over the resignation of a city traffic engineer, Norman Worsley. A committee was appointed to look into the matter and reported, among other things, that there was a lack of liaison between traffic and planning divisions and the overall supervising department directed by the city engineer, then as now, James Garnett.

New Position

Result was that Mr. Clack was appointed to a new position of planning officer, still under the city engineer's department, where he remained until the fall of 1963 when he was appointed director of the city's special projects division, reporting to city council through the city manager.

However, the shuffling did nothing to alter the fact that city lacked a proper planning department, the brief says.

Nothing illustrated this better than James Bay, the "cradle of Victoria," the report continues.

Mish-Mash

It is described as "a mish-mash of high-rise apartments towering over their lowly neighbors, each one graced with black-top gardens for parking, stucco boxes (apartments) on small lots scattered haphazardly throughout the area, small parking lots for provincial civil servants dotted around, and amidst all this, comfortable single-family homes."

This condition and others, such as the proposal to sell waterfront acreage at Fishermen's Wharf before an overall plan for Victoria was prepared, prompted the Community Planning Association to write to the mayor and council recommending changes in administration asking that all planning functions including those under the engineer's department (zoning, traffic, land use) be combined in one department answerable to council via the municipal manager.

Certain Projects

The brief says that a sequel to this action was a letter from the manager to Mr. Clack advising him what responsibility for certain of his projects, such as Bastion Square, the Blanshard-Hillside development and Royal Athletic Park, had been re-routed through the offices of the city engineer and the comptroller-treasurer.

To this point the special projects department had designed Bastion Square and prepared working drawings. After February 1965, it was excluded.

No answer to the association's letter was forthcoming until after Mr. Clack resigned in June from what he then described as an "intolerable situation."

The Clack resignation triggered a series of meetings, to one of which the association was denied permission to have members present, although the press was admitted.

No Investigation

Details of the controversy are related, along with the comment in the brief:

"This association fails to understand how council could accept the resignations of their entire special projects division and pass a vote of confidence."

Alderman Resigns -Officially

Ald. A. W. Toome has given written notice to the mayor and council that he intends to quit his two-year term half way through, in order to run for mayor in December.

Seen in Passing

Ken Georges packing around an anchor as he stowed boat gear after another fishing season. (He lives with his wife, Bea, and their two children, Alan, 2½, and Len, 8, at 3381 Hatley. His hobby is boat-building.) Bert Dodd letting the fish get the better of him while fishing. Dave Goyder listening to an important program. John Graham worrying about a week-end trip.

in the city engineer and city manager without a full investigation by an impartial committee set up under the Municipal Act."

Another piece of documentation referred to is a letter, dated July 6, from the present city planner, J. A. van Zyll de Jong, which, the brief says, was "devastatingly critical of Mr. Young and Mr. Garnett," but which was accepted "with hardly a ripple" by council.

Mr. de Jong said he was reluctant to fill in for Mr. Clack because the conditions which led to the latter's resignation were still present. He was uncertain about his own status and confused as to the city's over-all intent on planning.

The brief concludes with another plea for long-range, over-all, creative planning for the city as a whole.

Appeal Gives More Awards Of Excellence

The United Appeal of Greater Victoria has given out four more Awards of Excellence to employee groups in the appeal area.

The appeal's highest awards "for outstanding citizenship" went to Radio Station CFAX, whose 18 employees gave $390; the Victorian Order of Nurses, whose 12 employees gave $354; the 1517 Douglas branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, whose 33 employees gave $381; and the B.C. Land and Insurance Agency Ltd., whose 16 employees gave $210. All winners, except CFAX, were repeat winners from last year.

Plaque awards, for firms or organizations with 10 or more employees, went to W. H. Malin, Ltd.; Ismay, Bolton, Dunn and Company; the District Treasury Office, National Health and Welfare Department; B.C. Telephone Company, and Goodwill Enterprises.

Community Chest citations, for firms employing fewer than 10 persons, went to the John Howard Society; Canadian National Institute for the Blind; St. John Ambulance; Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded; Silver Threads Service; Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce branches at Cadboro Bay Road, Seaview Plaza, 1950 Fort, 1959 Fort, 1624 Hillside, and Superior and Menzies; Bank of Nova Scotia, 2212 Oak Bay branch; Nels Foster Refrigeration and Air Conditioning; Inspection Branch, Department of National Defence; Home Oil Distributors; Shell Canada; the Leader Publishing Company and the Gonzales Weather Office, Department of Transport.

ACHIEVEMENT AWARDS

Employee groups reporting 80 per cent participation and contributions at least 15 per cent higher than in previous years get Achievement Awards.

Among recent winners are the Department of Finance Treasury Office at HMC Dockyard; Glenwarren Private Hospital, and the Standard Steam Laundry and Canadian Linen Supply Company.

Hit-Run Suspect Arrested

A 68-year-old man is in good condition in St. Joseph's Hospital after he was injured in a hit and run accident at Douglas and Herald at 6:41 p.m. Thursday.

Leonard Taylor suffered undetermined injuries when his car was struck in the rear by a second car.

Police credited public co-operation for the quick arrest of a suspect.

City police patrolmen at the accident scene said five or six witnesses stepped forward as soon as police arrived, and gave descriptions of car and driver.

Penny Rites Monday

Funeral services for Herbert Penny, 45, who died Wednesday as a result of a fall at a Fraser Canyon construction site, will be held in Victoria at 4 p.m. Monday.

Mr. Penny was born in Northwich, in Cheshire, England, and came to Canada nine years ago. He is survived by the widow, 5 Woodville Place, and a son, Russell T. Penny of Edmonton.

Services will be held in Hayward's Funeral Chapel with Rev. E. W. S. Gilbert officiating.

'Witness' Angry

Dockyard Case Is Closed

Former HMC Dockyard employee C. A. Billett says he was not called to testify in a recent investigation into his dismissal and the navy says the investigation is over.

Disciplinary action taken against him in 1963 will not be altered, a naval spokesman said Thursday.

"Why do they not call me before the court of inquiry to ask me to prove the statements I have made?" Mr. Billett asked Thursday night.

RECENT CHARGES

As to more recent charges of irregularities in Dockyard operations, the navy says there was one instance of improper payment of dirty-work allowance, but that this was investigated and corrected in 1960, when it happened.

Mr. Billett was suspended, then laid off in June, 1963, after a dispute with another workman.

INVESTIGATION

Four weeks ago he publicly made charges of attempted bribery, alteration of time cards and favoritism in work and wages.

He also demanded an investigation into the reason for his dismissal.

NOT QUESTIONED

The charges were investigated by Commodore R. M. Battles, commodore superintendent, Pacific Coast, and the findings were submitted to Ottawa.

Mr. Billett was not questioned during the inquiry.

"I feel that all they have done," he said Thursday night, "is just have an investigation to cover up what they could."

ALWAYS BUSY

"I have tried about seven times to talk to Commodore Battles by phone but each time he was busy. His secretary gave him my number and that was the end of it. As far as I can see, they don't want to see me and don't want me in on any part of the investigation."

Mr. Billett Thursday night took exception to the letter he had just received from Associate Defence Minister Leo Cadieux.

COULD NAME

The letter stated Mr. Billett's allegations of changes in time cards was not substantiated. "I could name the ones who are changing the time cards," Mr. Billett said.

NO SUBSTANTIATION

He said he could name the ones who have been drawing the high rate of pay while doing straight time jobs.

Mr. Cadieux's letter said there was no substantiation of bribery charges.

DIDN'T ASK

"In a proper investigation these can definitely be proved," Mr. Billett said Thursday.

"They didn't even ask me what my charges were."

Mr. Cadieux's letter said the charge against Mr. Billett was "one of creating a disturbance by fighting and endangering life or property by negligence."

NO CHANGE

It agreed with the justice of a five-day suspension order and said "it was also decided that it would not be in the best interest of the department to consider you for further employment in the Dockyard. It is not decided to take any action at this time to change the decision."

"Why will they not give me a hearing, a fair trial or an appeal on the original charge?" Mr. Billett asks.

By BARRY JOHNSON

The Irving Laytons paid a brief visit to Victoria Monday.

One came to make us feel "as if I had ripped off your skin; or gouged your eyes out with my fingers; or scalped you and afterwards burnt your hair in the stinking sockets."

That's what he wants from a reader or listener. He came to read his poetry at Royal Roads Thursday night.

Irving Layton the iconoclast, the revolutionary, lover, boozier, hater, rolling raging prophet, is considered by many to be Canada's most substantial poet.

The other Irving Layton, custodian of this magnificent monster, isn't that fierce.

The 53-year-old frame is running a little to left. The wild hair is a uniform steely-grey, which only makes him more appealing to the women with a yen for a poet—even though they never hope to meet the man.

But the passion is undiminished. He's now Canada's oldest angry young man. And no doubt he is one of the angriest.

He's particularly angry at the people who try to ignore the 20th century, he said.

"The French Canadians tried to ignore the 20th century, but found out it wouldn't be ignored. It refused to go away."

"So then they came out and had a look at it and what they saw scared them. So they started talking about separation."

"They wanted to make an island fortress out of Quebec, at least the extremists did."

The advance poll for those who will be away from the home riding Nov. 8 takes place this Saturday and Monday from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Your copy of the voters' list contains the address of the advance poll for you. If you have lost the list, phone the Victoria returning office at 386-2291 or the Esquimalt-Saanich office at 477-3891.

The ballot will contain the name, address and occupation of each candidate, but not the political affiliation.

'Custodian' Speaks For Raging Poet

"There's no need to worry about Quebec separating from the rest of Canada," he said. "Actually, the people of B.C. are more separatist in their thinking than Quebecers."

But that's not altogether a bad thing, he said.

"I like Canada the way it is. B.C. is different from the Prairies, Ontario is different from Quebec. That's as it should be."

"I have a horror of the homogeneous mass that is the U.S."

"Here we don't have the tremendous pressure toward conformity."

He has written about "American brag, American ignorance, American vulgarity, American provincialism and superficiality."

But then he has also written about Marilyn Monroe, with whom Layton, the poet, was in love.

"Yes," he said. "My writing persona was in love with Monroe. They made of her what others made of Venus, something beautiful but something just to be used."

"She was my Earth Goddess and I hated them for what they did to her."

Layton the poet has had what is surely more than his fair share of the women, and college girls often come in for special mention.

He laughed: "That's true, but any travelling shoe salesman has had 100 times as much sexual experience as I have."

"I assume the role to give the inhibition-ridden reader a break; let him get a look at another way of life," he said. "Sadly, it isn't me."

Ian Arrol's Election Notebook

Music Livens Campaign

Another tradition falls by the wayside.

There will be no more peek-a-boo blankets or curtains loosely strung up for voting booths this election.

"Voters this federal election will vote in standardized cardboard voting compartments," Victoria returning officer Ray Bryant reported.

A hootenanny in the gymnasium and an organ playing in the park will be the scene at 8 p.m. today in the old YMCA Building, Blanshard and View.

The hootenanny is the idea of Roger Hunter, 17-year-old student at Victoria High School, and the organ recital and old songs by the fireplace is the idea of Roger's father, Frank Hunter, Social Credit candidate.

"I've lined up 20 acts for the hootenanny," said the son.

"Some who might not like the hootenanny can enjoy the organ in the lounge," said the father.

Coffee and doughnuts will be for all.

The advance poll for those who will be away from the home riding Nov. 8 takes place this Saturday and Monday from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Your copy of the voters' list contains the address of the advance poll for you. If you have lost the list, phone the Victoria returning office at 386-2291 or the Esquimalt-Saanich office at 477-3891.

The ballot will contain the name, address and occupation of each candidate, but not the political affiliation.

The president of the Christian Atheist Party at the University of Victoria, Peter Gibson, is working with a committee of all political parties on campus to set up a forum for the analysis of the election.

Two professors and two newspapermen are being invited to sit on the analysis panel at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 10, in the Student Union Building.

After their reports, the meeting will be divided into four discussion groups.

Election meetings today: Esquimalt-Saanich NDP, Len Stephenson with Tom Barnett (Comox-Alberni), 8 p.m., the K of P Hall, Sidney.

Victoria Social Credit, Frank Hunter, host at a hootenanny, 8 p.m., old YMCA Building.

Canadians Not In Control

Non-Canadians control Canada today and it will be a task to win the country back, Victoria Conservative candidate Rev. Clifford Waite said Thursday at a public meeting in the Boiler-makers' Hall.

"Non-residents control 69 per cent of our petroleum and natural gas industry; 59 per cent of Canada's mining and smelting industry and 60 per cent of all manufacturing industries," said Mr. Waite.

LIMIT OWNERSHIP

He called for legislation to limit foreign ownership of Canadian financial institutions to 25 per cent of total assets—"before they take over our banks as well."

Mr. Waite then outlined plans for a Bank of British Columbia in which the people could invest.

COMPLETE DEPARTURE

"Such a bank should not be dominated by the provincial government. Such domination would be a complete departure from the national banking policy, as I am sure Premier Bennett recognizes."

Steel Mill Still Big Issue

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Trade and Commerce Minister Loffmark continued the years old quest for a steel mill for British Columbia, when he was called to London recently while on a trade mission to The Netherlands, Belgium and Germany.

Upon his return to Victoria Thursday he announced a breakthrough in steel mill negotiations, but said he met people in the iron and steel industry during his unscheduled visit to London to answer questions about two proposals contained in a feasibility program prepared by the B.C. government.

PRESSING

Mr. Loffmark said he left the trade mission in Germany because of three transactions which "suddenly became pressing and couldn't be handled by correspondence."

He said, however, that in addition to the British steel officials he had talks with Lord Tweedsmuir, who heads several ventures in B.C.; the Duke of Devonshire, who has interests in the province; officials of the Hambro Bank, which is a heavy investor in B.C.'s mining industry, and Viscount Amory, governing director of the Hudson's Bay Company.

NO COMMENT

But Mr. Loffmark would say only "no comment" when asked the nature of his discussions with these men.

He also met Lord Thomson, who provided him with "advice on the British scene," and attended a luncheon with the president of the Board of Trade and minister of Commonwealth relations, who expressed interest in an extension of British exports to British Columbia.

FOOD PRODUCTS

The findings of the trade mission to Europe were that "the biggest opportunity over there is for the sale of food products of all kinds, particularly fish, and of basic chemical products."

Contracts were arranged for sale of B.C. foodstuffs and chemicals, but Mr. Loffmark declined to indicate the nature of the sales.

I Magistrate to Ponder Police Duty

Clarence Billett, the man who started a dockyard probe in Victoria, has now thrown a pincer at the city's magistrate.

Magistrate William Ostler, Thursday, decided to take time to consider whether police officers were doing their duty when they tried to eject him from a downtown cafe.

Billett, of 404 Sherk, was charged with obstructing Const. Douglas Wilson as a result of the incident, which followed an argument with cafe employees over a bill.

It was argued by prosecutor Chris Randall the officers had stepped in to prevent a breach of peace occurring. That it would have been clearly indicated by the circumstances, he said.

He agreed that the officers had not seen any signs of disturbance themselves, but argued if they were not allowed to step in to prevent a possible renewal, the value of police officers would be considerably undermined.

RIGHT TO ARGUE

Bruce Arlidge, lawyer for Billett, said the police had not justified interference. Customers not satisfied with their bill had the right to remonstrate within limits.

Court was told Billett and a companion entered the Melrose Cafe, 622 Yates at 5:20 a.m., Oct. 9. Billett had first asked for a rum and coke, said waitress Gail Berry, and when informed no drinks were being served, the two men ordered meals.

PAID BILL

Another cafe employee, Mona Poulton, said on the way out, Billett complained he had been overcharged, but paid the bill. A few moments later, however, he returned and continued to argue, refusing to leave.

Const. Wilson said Billett told police officers, "If you want me out of here you will have to put me out. You guys are walking on pretty thin ice."

At that he threw out his arms, knocking the officer into a cigarette machine. A brief scuffle followed.

Billett told court he complained about a 37-cent overcharge but did not argue over it. "I told the waitress it was not worth arguing over and that I would pay the high rate."

He alleged both police officers grabbed his wrists and began twisting an arm, which he said had been broken on a previous occasion. "I told them they were hurting and did not want any trouble," said Billett.

Cross-examined by Mr. Randall, Billett said he had not been to bed that night and had had a couple of drinks.

"I was working on another case ...," he explained. "You have probably read in the newspapers I am involved in the dockyard probe."

Magistrate Ostler will hand down judgment Nov. 5.

William Watt, 20, is desperately trying to get out of the navy and is receiving magisterial assistance.

PUSHED OFFICER

Sgt. Arthur Burton said that earlier Thursday Const. Peter Doherty arrested Watt in a toilet compartment on Esquimalt Road and was attempting to get him into a patrol car when Watt pushed the officer on the shoulder and threatened to assault him.

Watt, who has been in the navy 2½ years and is currently attached to HMCS Antigonia, told court he had asked police what he had to go to get charged to help him out of the navy.

He said he felt the navy had the same dislike towards him but it had not been sufficient so far to discharge him.

Malcolm Bibby, 24 Jeddburgh, was the perpetrator of a classic example of two wrongs not making a right, according to Magistrate Ostler.

It cost Bibby $35 on an assault charge to which he pleaded guilty.

Prosecutor Roger Walker explained Bibby was driving his car on the Island Highway when another vehicle cut in front of him to pass a vehicle ahead and in doing so forced Bibby's car over the centre of the roadway.

Defendant followed the offending car until near Colwood, where he forced it to halt, confronting the driver, and finally struck him on the side of the face.

The magistrate showed no sympathy for Bibby's incensement.

"You drove outrageously," he told him. "You should have held your temper rather than try to force the other driver off the road."

Magistrate Ostler said it could easily have landed him in court on a driving charge as well.

A 57-year-old woman was said by the magistrate to be unusually frank in admitting past shoplifting traits.

Thursday, Cecilia Marie Joss of 8 George Road East, pleaded guilty to her latest theft of $11.83 worth of goods from the Bay.

Magistrate Ostler said he suspected it was not a new offence for her by the way she went from department to department.

The woman was remanded to Nov. 4 for a pre-sentence report.

Philippine Elections Watched by Police

MANILA (Reuters) — Police rangers were moved into potential trouble spots in the Philippines Thursday in an effort to ensure a peaceful presidential election Nov. 9.

So far 22 deaths have been recorded from pre-election violence, although the number is less than one-quarter the 1963 mid-term elections toll.

A battalion of rangers moved toward the touchy Ilocos sur Province in the northern Philippines, to bring the total of government troops there to 1,200. Some 300 were deployed in Norcan town, where seven were killed and two severely wounded in a gun battle between rival factions of the ruling Liberal party nine days ago.

Bladen Assumed Fees to Stay

VANCOUVER (CP) — Federal aid to universities would have to be increased one third over Bladen commission recommendations if fees were abolished, the commission chairman said Thursday.

Dean Vincent Bladen, chairman, said projected figures on university costs were made on the assumption fees would be retained.

The commission recommended federal per capita aid to universities be increased from $2 to $3 and escalated at the rate of $1 a year to keep up with rising costs.

NONE DEPRIVED
"If fees were to be abolished, the grant would have to be at the rate of $7.50 per capita with an escalation rate of at least $1.50," the university of Toronto professor told a Vancouver press conference.

The commission recommended students get assistance in the form of scholarships and bursaries to ensure no needy student is deprived of an education.

OLD HAT
Bladen said students demonstrations against tuition are old hat as far as the commissioners are concerned.

"We heard all the arguments against fees during our deliberations, nothing new has been added as far as I'm concerned," he said.

"We intend to make no apology for what we have said or retreat from any stand we have taken."

University Finally Charges Fees

PERTH, Australia (UPI) — The days when Western Australia boasted of its "free" university as being the only "free" one in the British Commonwealth are in the ghostly past.

The progressive annual rise in university fees—one which has been called "vicious" by the struggling students—has now made the University of Western Australia just another Australian university as far as the cost of attending and studying is concerned.

The idea of a free university was that of first chancellor Sir Winthrop Hackett. He wanted the university which began in 1911 to be one for sons of the poor.

COSTS RISE
The scheme of admitting the students free of charge, of fees being paid out of government scholarships and grants staying until 1960.

Rising costs and shortage of grant money has caused the university's senate to strike its first fees.

HEAVY INCREASE

In 1960, it cost first year arts students £16.7 ($40) in an Australian faculty service charge. With heavy increases since then, first year arts students this year pay £156 ($290).

This puts university fees at Western Australia about 90 per cent behind those of Sydney and Melbourne universities.

How Traders Preferred Credit put Hal and Lois on wheels!

Months ago, Hal McRae ordered this lumber carrier, specially tailored to the needs of his lumber business. His wife Lois had her heart set on a new car. There was no financial problem here. Hal had made arrangements to use his purchase credit. He knew that Traders Preferred Credit Plan could help him turn earning power into purchasing power.

Traders Preferred Credit Plan is the low-cost way to finance. Shop and compare! It's the plan that lets you get the things you want today ... without borrowing or disturbing your savings. Successful businessmen like Hal McRae know this is the smart way to finance new machinery and equipment for business expansion.

When you need new equipment for your business ... a car or appliances for your home, remember it makes good sense to do business with a company that has played an important part in Canada's expanding economy for over 45 years.

NANAIMO—Police here are investigating several killings. They have found the remains of a number of adults and children in shallow graves near Nanos Bay.

killings, police will probably have to probe the past. Like, about 100 years. The bones found are believed to be remains of native Indians who died in a tribal war about a century ago.

WIDE AREA
The remains were buried about a foot under the surface, scattered over a wide area. "The bones were yellow and somewhat oily," said one man who was on the scene shortly after the bones were discovered by a construction work crew, using a bulldozer to dig a fence foundation.

SOME SMASHED
Some of the skulls were smashed by the bulldozer, others appeared to have been cracked at the time of death.

Pathologist Dr. R. S. Clark of Nanaimo, who is accustomed to getting fresher corpses from the RCMP, received the 11 skulls for examination.

HANDLED LATER
Not all the remains were those of adults. Some skulls appeared to be those of children. The wisdom teeth had not appeared. Only one disturbing factor has appeared in the case: apparently one of the skulls was handled some time more recently than 100 years ago. When found, it was wrapped in a 1960 copy of the Nanaimo Free Press.

NDP Speakers

Socialist Goals Reviewed

Socialist goals cannot be gained until the NDP reaches the commanding heights of power, Colin Cameron, Nanaimo NDP candidate, told the T. C. Douglas rally in Victoria Thursday night.

"Some say socialist goals have been gained. 'How can that be,' he asked, 'when economically, politically and socially we are controlled by gigantic corporations?'"

"To vote for the NDP," said the veteran socialist, "is to vote for a transformation of society and nothing else."

Esquimalt-Saanich NDP candidate Len Stephenson spoke of the need for more fish hatcheries in this area.

Victoria NDP candidate J. Lloyd Brereton spoke briefly on medicare. He thought Victoria Conservative candidate Rev. Clifford Waite's attitude to medicare inconsistent with the backing Mr. Waite's church, the United Church, gave to the scheme.

Mr. Brereton quoted Mr. Waite as having said publicly "... Medicare will be foisted on us ..."

The other federal NDP candidate who spoke, Tom Barnett, Comox-Alberni, invited the audience to "Send the two south Island candidates to join Mr. Cameron and me in Ottawa."

Mr. Barnett and Mr. Cameron were members of the last House.

Cornwall Crews Quell Ship Fire

CORNWALL, Ont. (UPI) — A smouldering fire in a hold of the United Arab Republic cargo ship Star of Suez has been reported extinguished. The 400-foot vessel, carrying a shipment of cotton, docked here with the cotton burning in her No. 3 hold. The Cornwall fire department and the tug Robinson Bay of the St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corp., fought the flames.

First Snowfall Hits Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — The first significant snowfall of the season occurred overnight in eastern Ontario with Ottawa reporting four inches by early Thursday. There were minor accidents involving 12 cars which police attributed to ice.

Crossing Street First Goal

WATERFORD, CONN. (AP) — The protest movement apparently has spread to the Cub Scouts.

At a Halloween party held by Waterford pack, 29, one member carried a sign that read:

"I will not go to Viet Nam — my Mommy won't let me cross the street."

Women To Be Lecturers?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dean Vincent Bladen, author of the Bladen report on higher education, suggested Thursday that income tax concessions might enable married women to fill university teaching posts in Canada.

Dean Bladen, professor of political economy and dean of arts and science at the University of Toronto, told the annual meeting of the Association of Universities and Colleges that one way of meeting the universities' needs for teachers would be to create "the respectable status of part-time women professors."

"The number of highly educated women we have in the country is a grossly untapped source of staff for universities," he said.

"Perhaps the federal government could make some sensible tax arrangement so that women teachers would be able to make a deduction for costs involved in employing a housekeeper to look after their husbands and families."

VANCOUVER (CP) — The board of transport commissioners Thursday rejected a move to include examination of telephone rates in its present public hearings of B.C. Telephone Company's financial affairs.

H. H. Griffin, assistant chief commissioner, gave the board's ruling at the outset of the fourth day of the board's review.

The B.C. Federation of Labor had asked at the start of the hearings this week that the board amend its terms of reference to include the question of telephone rates.

FINANCIAL AFFAIRS
The original board order last March said the hearings would review the financial affairs and operations of B.C. Telephone and consider the basis on which the permissive level of earnings of the company may be authorized by the board.

It said specifically that the propriety of existing telephone rates would not be considered at this hearing, but would be examined at a later hearing if necessary.

PRESENT TERMS
Mr. Griffin said Thursday that the board would not extend the scope of the present hearing because no notice had been given to the public that this matter would be considered; because the company had prepared its case according to the original terms of reference; and because the board was not prepared to extend the present hearings over the period of weeks that would be required to give the public and the company time to prepare for a rate case.

Mr. Griffin said the board can always deal with applications and complaints regarding rates. He also said that anyone representing a substantial interest could request a later hearing to review rates.

He added, however, that before initiating hearings of that sweeping nature the board would require that the complaints be of some substance.

Examination of Phone Rates Rejected by Transport Board

Rate Investigation

Probe Blasted By AT&T

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission has ordered an investigation of telephone rates — an action blasted by the board chairman of AT & T as totally unwarranted and unnecessary.

The investigation, announced Wednesday, will cover almost all the services offered by the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. The FCC said one of its objectives is to see if it should prescribe a maximum charges to the public.

Board Chairman Frederick R. Kappel fired back in a statement issued in New York: "The action ... is totally unwarranted and unnecessary, and in the final analysis the telephone-using public will be the loser. ... The energies of the many telephone people required to work on a case like this could be better expended to help keep our economy growing."

To Aid Pollution Battle

Sea-Creatures Give All

By BILL STAYDAL

Scooped from the sea bottom around Greater Victoria, sea-creatures are aiding a project aimed at better detection of pollution.

Next year a computer at the University of Victoria that has been told their types, number and weight will begin justifying the deaths of the little clams, sea cucumbers and sea worms.

By studying the increase or decline of the sea animals at fixed positions, marine biologist Dr. Derek V. Ellis expects to soon be disclosing subtle changes in undersea currents and their chemical content.

On Thursday Dr. Ellis and Betty Westerberg, his research assistant, made their 20th survey aboard the 70-ton hydrographic ship Ehkoi.

Along Satellite Channel and eastward from the Saanich Peninsula they dropped a grab, brought up sediment samples and squirming specimens, then moved on for more.

What Dr. Ellis is looking for right now is basic data which can be fed into the university's computer for comparison with later surveys.

If subsequent counts show more or fewer clams, for example, then he will know that conditions on the ocean floor have altered. Fewer may mean pollution, because clams are more sensitive to man-made poisons than any chemical test.

He's using a computer to analyse his information because of the enormous saving in time.

Ten years ago he spent a whole year analyzing data from a research task in the Canadian Arctic. Today the same job could be done in one day by computer.

"With a computer, it should be possible to expand the survey over large areas in a short period of time," he said.

In consultation with a forest biologist at the university, Dr. Ellis is even classifying marine sediments to give him more exact information.

His system is a refinement of one pioneered in Denmark.

The work is supported by a $5,000 direct grant from the federal government, and by the loan of the Ehkoi, which costs about $500 a day to operate.

This December, Dr. Ellis, two other lecturers and six students will board the CNAV Endeavor for offshore studies of the sea bottom.

Looking on from the sidelines is the navy, whose interest in currents is related to anti-submarine warfare.

To stretch a point, Dr. Ellis' clams and starfish are giving their lives for their country.

Hospital-School

Additional Facilities Due for Retarded

The provincial public works department has started planning facilities for a hospital-school for mentally retarded children near Royal Oak.

The complex, first of its kind in British Columbia, will provide 400 beds for treatment of Vancouver Island children and will be the prototype for future development of similar treatment centres in other parts of the province.

20-ACRE SITE

The new facility, to be called Glendale School, will be built on a site 20 acres or more in size, on the southeastern corner of Colquitz Farm near Wilkinson Road.

Plans are in the programming stage, working in co-operation with the health department to decide what facilities will be needed, a spokesman said.

MAJOR STEP

When completed, the Glendale hospital-school will be a major step toward decentralization, in keeping with the department's recently established policy of regional treatment.

At present, retarded children from anywhere in B.C. are admitted through the 1,300-bed Woodlands School at New Westminster, where they remain or are sent on to the 570-bed unit at Tranquille, near Kamloops.

ADDITION STARTED

A 100-bed addition is now under construction at Tranquille, which was reactivated for that purpose after being closed down in the late 1950s as a tuberculosis sanatorium.

It is understood the Glendale

Air Council To Meet In Montreal

MONTREAL (UPI) — The council of the International Civil Aviation Organization has decided to convene a special meeting at ICAO headquarters in Montreal Feb. 1, 1966 to consider the question of the limits of liability of the carrier if passengers are killed or injured.

The two-week meeting is open to ICAO's 110 member states and to observers of any other states, members of the United Nations of the specialized agencies, and of certain interested international organizations.

The meeting will report back to the council which will then decide whether to call a diplomatic conference to revise the existing limits.

At present the liability of the air carrier to its passenger is limited by the Warsaw Convention of 1929 and the Hague protocol of amendment of 1955.

Cubans Halt Shuttle

KEY WEST, Fla., (UPI) — Cuba called a halt Thursday to the hazardous refugee shuttle across the Florida Straits, paving the way for an orderly airlift of persons wanting to leave Fidel Castro's Communist island.

One boat with 30 persons aboard is a full day overdue on the treacherous crossing, but coast guard officials say the skipper of the boat—the 36-foot Esperanza—may have purposely dodged patrol boats to avoid having his craft confiscated.

The Cuban government announced this morning it was halting the small boat shuttle at midnight because of progress in negotiations with the United States on an airlift plan.

MINOR DETAILS

U.S. state department officials later confirmed the progress and said only minor, technical details remained to be resolved.

Officials of two foreign airlines—KLM, Dutch, and Iberia, Spanish—expressed immediate concern over the airlift plan, saying it might put them out of business. The bulk of Cuban business of both airlines is made up of Cubans fleeing the country.

HARD HIT

One spokesman said Iberia would be hardest hit since the Spanish airline had 38,000 reservations on a waiting list in Havana as of last week.

A boatload of 115 refugees arrived at Key West Thursday aboard the Little Mo II, a leaky vessel that immediately was put in drydock to keep it from sinking.

TWO SHOT

One of the refugees said there was a report at the embarkation port of Camarioca, Cuba, that Castro's militiamen shot two young, draft-age men attempting to swim to an exodus boat. One was believed killed.

Castro's open door policy does not apply to draft-age males.

Under the airlift plan the refugees will be flown from Varadero, a lush resort spot until Castro took over the hotels, and flown to Opa-Locka, a reconditioned World War II navy base on the outskirts of Miami.

RELOCATION

Many of the refugees will never see downtown Miami. They will be processed at Opa-Locka and immediately flown to relocation points in other parts of the country.

South Florida already has absorbed 90,000 Cuban refugees since Castro took power and state officials have stressed that any new influx must be channelled to other parts of the nation to avoid further economic strain on the sunshine state.

400-A-DAY

The Opa-Locka installation is set up to handle 400 refugees a day and if there is any overflow they will be trucked to a renovated officers club near Miami International Airport.

No Ceremonies Planned Nov. 12 At Biggest Barge's Launching

When the first of the world's two largest newsprint barges goes down the ways at Yarrow's Ltd. Nov. 12, it will be on a business-as-usual basis with no ceremony.

General manager John Wallace said work on the second barge of the $2,500,000 MacMillan, Blodell and Powell River contract was already in the fabrication stage and laying of the keel would take place as soon as the ways are clear.

The new barges will be used to transport newsprint from MacMillan's mills at Powell River and Port Alberni to California in a pioneering 1,200-nautical-mile haul.

Barges will be hauled on their

VANCOUVER (CP) — When British Columbia's liquor laws were drafted the authorities forgot to consider the public's drinking habits, city prosecutor Stewart McMorran said Thursday.

"That's why we're having difficulty now," Mr. McMorran said.

Speaking at a service club luncheon, he suggested everyone in the room had been to a place at least once where bottles were kept under the table.

WAY OF LIFE

"It's been a way of life in Vancouver so long, but when the liquor laws were changed some years ago no thought was given how to change the public's habits," he said.

He said the enforcement of liquor laws are not carried out as well as they should be today and said the reason was the difficulty with the laws not the persons enforcing them.

REPORT DRAFT
Mr. McMorran is one of four Vancouver officials who drafted a report calling on the Liquor Control Board to grant licences to all city cabarets regardless of past offences. The report also called for a three-man licensing board to replace LCB chairman Col. Donald McGugan.

Mr. McMorran declined to discuss the report because it has been sent to city council for study.

Briefs Encounter Sends Police In All Directions

NEW YORK (UPI)—A police department testimonial dinner is usually a dull kind of thing, with the embarrassed guest of honor trying to look modest while his superiors stand up and drone on about what a great guy good of Sam was.

The testimonial for a retiring sergeant at a Queens precinct followed the script up to a point, including speeches by a captain and two sergeants. Then the festivities were brightened by the appearance of Miss Mary Rooney, who is blonde and has eyes of hazel.

Miss Rooney, with 38-27-37 statistics and the nickname "The Million Dollar Baby," is no girl to just stand there and be admired.

She sings and dances and little bits of her clothing flutter to the stage and that was what was happening at the Long Island Hofbrau to the cheers and applause of 300 policemen early Thursday while the four-piece band played "You Stepped Out of a Dream."

The festivities were made even more festive when the cops learned Miss Rooney had brought along a friend — off-duty belly dancer Anita Ventura.

Miss Rooney was to demonstrate her work, but noted her usual fee is $100 for a performance. Her new admirers passed the hat, but it is a well-known fact that a policeman's lot is a poor one. Among the 300 of them the most they could scrape up was $75. She agreed to the discounted price.

Here is where the happy tale takes on its sad note. While 300 armed, eagle-eyed, vigilant sleuths kept careful watch on the Misses Rooney and Ventura — a cat-footed burglar alighted into the dressing room and back out again — taking $30 belonging to Miss Rooney and the lace panties of Miss Ventura.

After the dastardly deed was discovered, the 300 police milled about in confusion and dismay while Miss Ventura, still in costume, joined the Million Dollar Baby in a taxi for the ride home.

"You'd think," sighed Miss Rooney as the cab roared off, "that a working girl would be safe with all those cops around."

Airlines Agree On Films

VIENNA (UPI)—The International Air Transport Association after a non-stop night session announced Thursday a compromise agreement on the controversial question of in-flight entertainment such as films, television or radio.

Although the solution to the longstanding problem was hailed as one of the greatest successes in IATA history, a number of major airlines have indicated they will not introduce in-flight entertainment in their aircraft.

ADDED CHARGE
The association reached agreement in principle, unanimously as required by the rules, to allow entertainment during flight at an added charge of $2.50 per passenger.

Several airlines said they will not introduce the entertainment "because we don't think the passengers will like it."

BIG AIRLINES
An IATA spokesman said he could not name these companies, "but I think there will be quite a few big airlines among them."

Informed sources said these airlines were planning to use the slogan, "we offer peace and quiet."

"It was an optional agreement which does not mean that the in-flight entertainment will be offered by all airlines around the world," the spokesman said.

Conciliator Takes Over

Sooke School District teachers' salary negotiations broke down Thursday night, and the question has been left in the hands of conciliator Maywell Wickheim.

The teachers submitted Mr. Wickheim's name after last-ditch negotiations fell through. Until Thursday, the teachers had demanded a 9.2-per-cent average pay increase, which would have provided salary boosts ranging from $250 to $890 yearly.

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—Pope Paul, Thursday promulgated five Vatican council documents which bind the Roman Catholic Church to reform its structure and look more kindly on Jews, Moslems and other non-Christians.

Stamped with the seal of his formal approval, the decrees were issued to the world as official church doctrine. They are:

• Church government. A weighty decree "concerning the pastoral office of bishops in the church" opens the way to reforms of church government. It says the Roman Curia departments should be better adapted to modern needs and gives bishops a share in "collegial responsibility" with the Pope.

• The Jews and other non-Christians. From now on Catholics who speak disparagingly of Jews or accuse them of being "God-killers," or sneer at Moslems, Buddhists or Hindus as "pagans" will be going against the teaching of their church.

A council declaration exonerates the Jews from collective guilt for the death of Christ and says that the church "reproves, as foreign to the mind of Christ, any discrimination against men or harassment of them because of their race, color, condition in life or religion."

Pope Paul

• Religious orders. A decree on religious orders says run-down monasteries and communities should merge with others. The garb of monks and nuns must be "simple and modest, poor and at the same time becoming." The decree calls on monks and nuns to avoid every appearance of luxury.

• Christian education. A decree says that civil authorities should make available public subsidies so that parents can choose schools for their children according to their conscience. Prudent sex education is recommended in schools.

• Training of student priests. The last decree suggests how student priests can be given better intellectual and spiritual training to carry out the Vatican's new policies.

Pope Paul promulgated the texts in Saint Peter's Basilica at a public ceremony attended by the Roman Catholic bishops. The bishops earlier voted their formal approval in a ballot counted by computers housed in the chapel of the basilica.

The council, the first for nearly a century, has so far issued 10 documents since the late Pope John XXIII opened it in 1962. Previous ones deal with ways to promote Christian unity, reform of public worship and other important questions. Six more documents are awaiting final approval.

Decree Supported in Brazil

Relative Calm Follows Dictatorial Power Play

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)—Brazil Thursday appeared to have accepted President Humberto Castello Branco's assumption of dictatorial powers with relative calm.

There were scattered incidents in Rio de Janeiro but the country, in general, appeared to have accepted the situation calmly.

GOVERNORS AGREE
A government spokesman, Justice Minister and former ambassador to Washington, Juracy Magalhães, claimed widespread support for Castello Branco's action. "Practically all state governors have telegraphed their support for the measure," he said.

Space Cities Foreseen By Soviet Scientist

MOSCOW (UPI)—A leading Soviet scientist said Thursday mankind will be able to increase to 1,000,000,000 times the present world population by proper use of space development in the solar system.

Physicist Arkady Ulubekov drew his far-out picture of the shape of things to come in a report to the congress of the Soviet Geographical and Geodesical Society now underway in Riga, Latvia. His speech was reported by the Soviet Tass news agency.

Outlining conceivable developments which he said "will perhaps be the order of the day within the next 100-200 years," Ulubekov discounted the possibility of transforming planets which are unfit for human habitation.

"The task," he said, "is to create artificial planets as the most reasonable way of utilizing cosmic resources."

GREAT CITIES

He noted the immense prospects involved in creating cities revolving on orbits around the sun.

Tass said Ulubekov "outlined some special aspects of life in satellite cities in outer space and a number of problems which must be investigated theoretically."

He said that "outer space settlements" would make it possible to consume more than 10 per cent of the sun's energy as compared with the one two-billionth part which reaches the earth.

Tass pointed out that Ulubekov had maintained a "lively correspondence" with late Soviet scientist Konstantin Tsiolkovsky, who died in 1935. Tass described Tsiolkovsky as "the father of astronautics and space rocket theory on the population of near-sun space."

Will the Laird allow his single malt whisky to marry?

The Laird's pride and joy is a rare malt whisky his family has been distilling for generations, deep in the Scottish highlands.

It's one of the 42 different whiskies that are expertly blended to create Ballantine's Scotch. Once blended, these whiskies are allowed to mingle.

It's a natural process. And it's the only way to impart the mellow smoothness and authentic flavour that is Ballantine's. Most whiskies are made this way. But with some, it's a marriage of convenience.

The Laird would have none of that. His whisky, and the others that go into Ballantine's, are made for each other.

You might even call it a love match. Your first sip of Ballantine's will tell you what marriage is all about.

Bullet Wound for Youngster

A piece of bullet will stay in leg of 14-year-old John Miller, Ladysmith high school student, for about 10 days. Mrs. William Miller points to wound her son received when unknown shooter fired gun near the school, and piece of bullet struck John this week.—(Klaus Muentner)

Fallout Striking Children?

ST. GEORGE, Utah (UPI) — This small desert oasis northeast of the U.S. nuclear test site Thursday awaited a team of medical researchers seeking the cause of thyroid gland abnormalities in school children.

The abnormalities, nodules or lumps in the thyroid, were disclosed by the public health service in Washington. However, health officials said there was no conclusive proof that radioactive fallout was directly responsible.

St. George, the county seat of Washington county and summer home of Mormon pioneer Brigham Young, is about 100 miles from the atomic test site in neighboring Utah. The county has the highest level of nuclear fallout in the nation.

About 2,000 children between the ages of 10 and 18 in Washington county were examined by a panel of doctors. Nodules were found in the thyroid glands of 70 children.

In a comparable study in Graham county, Arizona, which is outside the fallout pattern, 25 of 1,400 children had nodules.

Grits Face Stormy Meetings

By FRASER KELLY
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

VANCOUVER, B.C. — This ocean city is battering down the hatches today for what are likely to be the two stormiest meetings of Prime Minister Pearson's election campaign.

Mr. Pearson has two major rallies, one in the University of British Columbia gymnasium, the other in the Queen Elizabeth Theatre.

If past history is any example, they will be doozers.

In the last election some 7,000 people who jammed the Vancouver Forum and screamed so loudly through his whole meeting that people 20 feet from the podium couldn't hear a word he said.

There were hundreds of ban the bobbies and other assorted peaceniks. They tossed cardboard and super airplanes all over the stage.

TICKETS ISSUED

Fistfights broke out but Mr. Pearson, who was obviously upset, kept plugging until he had finished his prepared speech.

Liberals had issued tickets for the meeting.

Their opponents got hold of some and reprinted them, selling them to demonstrators.

CONTROL EASIER

Liberals organizers have been more careful this time. It will be far easier to control rowdies in the Queen Elizabeth Theatre than it was in the Forum. But they have already been warned that demonstrators are preparing for another major turnout.

A few peaceniks turned up at the airport when he arrived last night. But they were drowned out by the warm welcome about 100 University of British Columbia students gave him.

This is Mr. Pearson's first and last visit to British Columbia during the election campaign.

GIFT TOUR

Shortly before announcing the election he made an eight-day gift-giving tour in Western Canada.

Between the rallies today he will visit this city's famed Chinatown. Saturday he will blitz the downtown area with a sort of highspeed mainstreeting.

WEAK SHOW

The Liberals are anxious to increase their representation in this area to offset what will likely be another very weak showing in Western Canada.

They now hold seven of the province's 22 seats. New Democrats hold nine, Conservatives four and Socreds two.

Satellite Picks Up Mysterious Beam

MOSCOW (Reuters) — A Russian space satellite has picked up powerful mysterious radio waves, possibly emanating from one of the planets, the Soviet news agency Tass reported today.

Tass said the unknown beam, 100 times stronger than anything expected, was discovered and measured by Zond-2, a research satellite which has been in orbit 11 months.

Tass said it was not yet possible to pinpoint the source of the radio waves, which were "of amazingly great intensity."

Zond-2 was launched Nov. 30, 1964, toward Mars, to gather data needed for prolonged manned space flights.

Protest Southern Justice

Selma Selected by King For More Race Marches

ATLANTA (UPI)—Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. disclosed Thursday that Selma, Ala., has been picked as the staging area for a new drive to highlight demands for federal intervention in racial trials.

King said a "strategy meeting" will be held in Brown's Chapel Church in Selma Friday at noon. He said he would not personally attend but will stay in touch with his lieutenants there by telephone.

King invited to the meeting "all civil rights and religious groups whose personnel have been victimized by recent tragedies in the South."

FOCAL POINT

The Negro civil rights leader announced earlier he would use Hayneville, Ala., scene of two recent acquittals of white men in racial slayings, as the focal point of a new campaign to be launched in November and December.

In other racial developments, new racial marches were threatened in Lincoln, Ga., an area in north east Georgia tense with racial troubles recently. In nearby Washington, Ga., whites protested sharply over the FBI questioning of four young white men about an incident during a demonstration there.

PROJECT DRIVE

King left for a speaking engagement in New York and his chief assistant, the Rev. Andrew Young, took off for Chicago shortly after announcement of the Selma rally was made from his

King

Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) headquarters in Atlanta.

Hosea Williams, who has headed King's voter project drive, said he and Young will conduct the Brown's Chapel meeting Friday. He emphasized there will be "absolutely no racial activity" connected with the session although a night mass meeting at Brown's Chapel is possible.

RAIN SOAKED

King's general invitation list for the meeting included many of the same people who helped him mount the celebrated Selma to Montgomery march last spring.

The march followed a week-long, rain-soaked confrontation between demonstrators and police in front of Brown's Chapel.

Friday, October 29, 1965 23

The issue then was demands for open voter registration at the Dallas County courthouse in Selma. The new issue is alleged discriminatory juries in Lowndes County, 30 miles away, and demands that federal courts handle civil rights murder trials.

"We have been patient and we have longed for the day when justice would prevail in the southland," King said. "But the cup of endurance has run over and some non-violent response must be forthcoming."

SELMA TALKS

He said the Selma meeting was chosen following two days of "serious discussion and analysis of the question of justice in the south."

Williams said Selma was "the logical choice" because it is the site of SCLC Alabama headquarters. Selma and Montgomery are the nearest big towns from which demonstrators could commute to Hayneville where King has sworn to "march around the courthouse."

Palsy Clinic Plans Move

The cerebral palsy clinic, now located in the annex building of Royal Jubilee Hospital, will be moving Nov. 6 to new quarters on Lansdowne Campus.

The clinic, which looks after 85 children, will be located in one of the old chemistry huts behind the Young Building.

Expansion plans of Jubilee Hospital prompted the move.

Homosexuality Bill Passed

LONDON (UPI)—The House of Lords Thursday approved a bill permitting homosexual acts between consenting adult males in private. The vote was 116 to 46.

But the bill is unlikely to become law—at least, not in the foreseeable future.

The Labor government has refused to give it time in the House of Commons—where laws are made—and the Conservatives are known to be opposed to the change.

The bill won approval from several church leaders, including the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Michael Ramsey, and former Labor prime minister Earl (Clement) Attlee.

Supporters of the bill, which was introduced by Lord Arran, claimed the present law harming homosexuality was "a black-maller's charter."

They charged many people were forced to turn traitor against Britain because of blackmail over a homosexual experience. Others said homosexuality was part of some people's makeup and could not be cured by prison.

Jobless, Benefits Show Drop

OTTAWA (CP) — The unemployment insurance commission paid $12,800,000 during August to claimants, compared with $11,800,000 in July and $13,200,000 in August last year, the bureau of statistics reported Thursday.

DBS said the number of beneficiaries drawing the payments averaged 130,000 a week, compared with 118,200 in July and 139,400 in August a year earlier. The average weekly benefit payment was $23.39 in August this year, $23.83 in July and $23.66 in August, 1964.

At the end of August, there were 172,500 claimants for unemployment insurance benefits. This figure was down from 184,400 recorded at the end of July and from 182,000 at the end of August last year.

Wants to break 60

First Nine Sizzling 28

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP)—Gary Player, dressed in black as usual, stormed over the first nine holes of the 6,550-yard Kooyung golf course in a sensational nine-under-par 28 Thursday and finished the first round of the Australian Open championship with a spectacular 62.

Instead of being content with his 28-34-62 on the par 37-36-73 layout, the South African bitterly criticized himself for not breaking 60, the lowest score ever registered in a major golf tournament on a championship course.

His 28 on the front nine is only one stroke over the fantastic 27 registered by Mike Souchak of the United States over the second nine of the first round in the 1955 Texas Open. Souchak went on to win the event with a 257, a record. His first round score was 60, equalled by six other players in various parts of the world but never broken.

EAGLE START
Player, current U.S. Open champion as well as the world match play champion and winner of individual honors in the recent Canada Cup matches, began his round with an eagle three and never let up. His card showed nine 3s, seven 4s, one 5s and a deuce on the No. 3 hole.

"I never have seen anyone hit the ball the way Gary did," said Jack Nicklaus of Columbus, Ohio, who is here to defend the title he won a year ago. Nicklaus, who had a stiff and sore right shoulder, posted 33-33-66.

HIS AMBITION
Biting his lower lip and pulling at his white cap, Player said coldly "I thought I could achieve my biggest, remaining ambition—to break 60 in an international event on a championship course. Perhaps that will come tomorrow."

Kel Nagle of Australia, who lost to Player in a playoff for the U.S. crown, shared third place with two other Australians at 67 while Bob Charles, the left-handed New Zealander, and Peter Thomson of Australia, five times winner of the British Open, were deadlocked at 68 with Norman Van Nida, veteran Australian.

Saves Antelope Season

Alberta Conservation Works

By DON MACLACHLAN
EDMONTON (CP)—Alberta antelope hunters can thank a nine-year conservation program for the 1965 season.

Without a licence quota program, Alberta likely would have had to follow Saskatchewan in calling off the season because of "grim" winter kill, says biologist Dr. George Mitchell of the fish and wildlife department.

After the cruel winter of 1947-48, the pronghorn population in Alberta built up to the point where more than 21,000 were counted in aerial surveys last year. Only 16,800 were spotted this spring.

Many antelope died in Alberta and others moved into Saskatchewan and Montana. Hundreds more died there as deep snow covered feed.

Since 1956 the fish and wildlife department has estimated each year how many antelope it can "afford" to have killed. A limited number of hunting permits is issued on the basis of this estimate.

Dr. Mitchell says licences for this year's week-long season ending Oct. 30 were issued for an estimated kill of 3,600 antelope. This compares with about 4,300 last year.

"We couldn't even have done that without ensuring an adequate population by controlling hunting on the licence and area basis," he says.

The pronghorn population in each of seven hunting zones and its apparent breeding success is taken into account when planning the "allowable harvest" in each zone.

Up to 1956, antelope hunting was permitted in only a small area in extreme southeastern Alberta. Since then, it has been extended to an area of about 170 miles by 150 miles.

Some 8,700 hunters applied for 1964 licences, issued on a draw-from-the-hat basis. A total of 5,750 were successful. This year, 12,600 persons applied and 4,700 got permits.

"Hunter success is quite high for antelope," Dr. Mitchell says. "We figure it's between 80 and 92 per cent. With this number (4,700 permits) we estimate the harvest hopefully at about 3,600."

The permissible kill was slightly increased in some zones, particularly around Brooks, 100 miles southeast of Calgary, a once-closed area gradually being "broken in" to pronghorn hunting.

But in others, figures were sharply reduced. In one southeastern Alberta zone, the estimated harvest was cut to 270 from 970 and in another, farther north, to 375 from 750.

"The winter kill was pretty grim in some areas," Dr. Mitchell says. "We lost 5,000 animals, though some of those were through migration. We could have had no season at all."

Saskatchewan has a fledgling scheme which operates on the same lines, Dr. Mitchell says, but "I guess it hasn't really been going long enough to be effective yet."

Hunters can list the zones in which they want to hunt in their applications, thus getting "more than one kick at the cat" in the draw for permits.

That Man Again

Norm McLeod is coming to town for a Coast Soccer League game tomorrow afternoon, and that's just about enough to set Victoria United on edge without knowing who'll be helping him.

The pesky little forward, who has ruined United so often, will be here with unbeaten Burnaby Villa for a league fixture which will start at 2 at Royal Athletic Park.

McLeod will be at inside-left for the Burnaby XI, who used to be known as Canadians, and will be the prime responsibility of right-half George Paul.

At stake for United is advancement of at least one notch in the league tables. Although unbeaten, Villa is also winless, having drawn all three of their matches. United is kicking 500 for the season, its 2-1 victory here last Saturday over North Shore balancing league play at 1-1.

United will start the same eleven players who started last Saturday, which means that Barry Sadler will again be in goal with Don McIntosh and Len Anderson at fullback.

Lineups:
VICTORIA UNITED: Barry Sadler; Don McIntosh, Len Anderson; George Paul, Bill Hamilton, Dave Stodart, Jameson, Ike Mackay, Bert Soutar, Peter Gooding, Dave McLean, Spares-Tony Quinn, Tom Locke, Russ Hall.
BURNABY VILLA: Bob Bennett; Neil MacEachnie, Ivo Kanihil, Ray Nesbitt, Brian Hemmingsway, Bill Moss, Bob Joyce, Harold Harvie, Ray Nesbitt, Norm McLeod, Harold Hansen.

with an aggressiveness that has left him at least as high in professional hockey penalty statistics as his goal scoring.

With 2,484 minutes for the 1,291 games he had played starting this season, Glover has spent the equivalent of more than 37 games on penalty benches. As far as is known, only Larry Zeidel, whose total for all games played as a pro was 2,512 minutes starting this season, is ahead of Glover.

And Zeidel, incidentally, will be on the Cleveland defence tomorrow night, barring sickness or injury tonight in Seattle, where the Barons open their four-game WHL swing.

Glover, who will be 38 on Jan. 5, started his professional career with Omaha in the old USHL in 1947. For the next few seasons he shuttled between Detroit in the NHL and Indianapolis in the AHL before dividing the 1952-53 season between Chicago Black Hawks, St. Louis and Cleveland.

The next season found him in Cleveland to stay, and he has probably become as well known there as Jimmy Brown.

In his 12 full seasons with the Barons, Glover has never failed to score at least 20 goals or serve at least 100 minutes in penalties.

He has scored at least 20 goals in 16 of his 18 seasons, has at least 30 in seven seasons and 40 or more in three seasons. In his 1,024 AHL games starting this season, he has scored 474 goals, provided 719 assists and spent 2,089 minutes on a penalty bench.

Add 13 goals, 11 assists and 62 penalty minutes for his NHL play; 16 goals, 39 assists and 79 penalty minutes for his 66 USHL games, and 47 goals, 52 assists and 254 penalty minutes for 110 playoff games and the totals are impressive.

They come to 1,292 games, 550 goals, 821 assists and those 2,484 penalty minutes.

Honors, of course, have been many. He has been selected three times as the most valuable player in the AHL, won the scoring championship twice and made the first all-star team five times and was the second right-wing choice twice.

He sets a new AHL record every time he plays a game, gets a goal or assist or another penalty. Understandably, his approach to a game is summed up quite neatly, and directly—

"I'll say only one thing—every time we play the other club will know it has been in a game."

NHL Boss Disappointed McMahon's Group Pulls Out

VANCOUVER—Withdrawal of a syndicate headed by Frank McMahon in the bidding for a National Hockey League franchise in Vancouver has been a personal disappointment to NHL-president Clarence Campbell.

"It's going to require a maximum effort by many people to bring major league hockey to Vancouver," Campbell said yesterday. "Men of the calibre of those in the McMahon group are needed."

McMahon announced Wednesday that his 16-man group had unanimously agreed to withdraw its NHL application to leave the way clear for another syndicate headed by Cyrus H. McLean and including Fred Hume, present owner of the Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League.

McMahon said that the withdrawal was made at the request of the McLean group.

SOME DOUBTS
"I don't know why the McLean group would request the other group to withdraw its bid," Campbell quoted in a Vancouver newspaper story.

"It leaves me with some doubts about the Vancouver situation. We don't want any friction out there."

Asked if the McLean group would now get the Vancouver franchise in the proposed NHL expansion to a second six-club division, Campbell said "that will be up to the governors." He added that a Vancouver franchise "isn't in the bag yet."

MAY JOIN FORCES

McLean, who expressed surprise at the withdrawal of the McMahon group, said that it was possible some members of the group would be approached about joining his syndicate. He also said that his group will soon take over control of the Canucks.

So far, there has only been guessing at the makeup of the McLean group outside the name of Allan McGavin. Mentioned as likely members have been Nat Bailey, Harold Foley, Hartland MacDougall, Mackenzie Bowell and Foster Hewitt. Hume, it is said, will retain a 10 per cent interest in the Canucks.

Badminton Tournament On Tonight
Play starts tonight at the Victoria Racquets Club in the annual invitational badminton tournament with draws at 7:30 and 8:30.

Competition in both the "A" and "B" classes will be in men's and ladies' singles and doubles and mixed doubles.

Wayne Macdonnell, Canadian singles champion, will be on hand to defend the singles title he won last year. Other entrants including Bert Ferguson of Vancouver, and from Seattle, Port Angeles, Victoria and other Island centres are expected.

Tonight's draws:
7:30—Simmons and Alderson vs Adams and O'Connor; Wells and Jones vs Melis and Robson; Scott and Blair vs Lude and McLean.
8:30—O'Neill and Blair vs winners Simmons and Alderson vs Adams and O'Connor; Wells and Jones vs Melis and Robson; Scott and Blair vs Lude and McLean.

(Note: Other players should be prepared to play next draw-at noon on Saturday.)

Navy, Vikings Meet In Esquimalt Game

The Navy and Victoria University's Vikings meet tonight for the first time this season in the Esquimalt Hockey League.

A win for the Vikings tonight would have all teams in the league tied for first place with two points each. Vikings and Navy have each played but once while Pontiacs have played two games.

Navy has more young blood on its team this year than it has had for many years, as many of its older players have quit the game.

The sailors shocked Esquimalt fans last Friday when they downed the Pontiacs, 5-4, in the second overtime period.

Navy netminder, Phil Frank was the star of the game when he blocked 51 shots from a determined gang of Pontiac Chiefs. Game time is 8 p.m.

DETROIT—Bobby Hull is off to his fastest ever start but it is a comparatively-new veteran who could make the difference this season as Chicago Black Hawks try again for the National Hockey League championship which has always eluded them.

Doug Mohns, who looked around as a defenceman sometime leftwinger for 11 NHL seasons with Boston Bruins before being traded to Chicago last year, seems willing to take some of the scoring load off Hull.

Mohns, who'll be 32 in December, matched Hull's two-goal performance last night by contributing his third and fourth goals in a 5-1 rout of Detroit Red Wings.

They gave him a total of seven points for his three games, one behind Bobby Rousseau of Montreal Canadiens and a tie with Hull for the individual scoring lead.

And victory, keeping the Hawks unbeaten and tied moved them into a first-place tie with Montreal.

Phil Esposito started the scoring early in the first period just as a Detroit defenceman Bob McCord was trying to get back into action from the penalty bench.

Hull who already has six goals, and Mohns took over from there, each scoring once in each of the last two periods. Alex Delvecchio, getting a break when playing as a penalty-killer, wrecked Glenn Hall's shutout bid in the eighth minute of the third period.

'Little Olympics' Give Proof

Nobody Should Die in Mexico City

MEXICO CITY (CNS)—Athletes, coaches, trainers and doctors are busy evaluating the "Little Olympics" held here to test the effects of Mexico City's mile-and-a-half-high altitude on their performances.

Some 400 athletes from 17 countries took part. In their opinion the rarified air will not incapacitate the athletes but neither is it something that can be overcome by arriving a few days early.

It would take six months for distance runners to get acclimated, said Billy Mills, the U.S. 10,000 meter champ who won a gold medal in the Olympics last year in Tokyo.

When Mexico City was chosen as the site for the 1968 Olympics, the U.S. Olympic committee expressed dismay at this capital's 7,349-foot altitude.

There will be those who will die because of the thin air, he predicted.

It is now agreed by the athletes who took part in the recent competition that this will not be the case.

At the same time, they scoffed at Mexican statements that athletes can become accustomed to the altitude in three or four days, or a week at the most.

"I'd say more like a month," ventured Thornton Norton, U.S. swimming team coach.

But if the altitude is not as big a problem as the alarmists made out there is another worry almost any tourist could have pointed out. Stomach disorders sidelined many athletes.

The Finns, Swedes and Japanese all had team members down at one time or another with what is known here as "Montezuma's revenge."

The French, on the other hand, reported they had avoided stomach upsets.

"We brought our own water," coach Jacques Thibault reported, "and we took all our meals at a good French restaurant."

Four Fight Figures Must Put Up Bonds

TORONTO (CP) — The four main figures in the current heavy weight championship squabble have been asked by the World Boxing Association to post bonds with the WBA in hopes it will lead to an undisputed world champion.

Merv McKenzie, Ontario athletic commissioner and former WBA president, Thursday said he had received a telegram from the executive secretary of the WBA confirming a resolution passed at a meeting at Houston, Tex. Oct. 16.

The resolution asks that Cassius Clay of Louisville, Floyd Patterson of New York, Ernie Terrell of Chicago and George Chuvalo of Toronto post bonds with the WBA treasurer.

Terrell and Chuvalo meet here Nov. 1 in a 15-round WBA title match. Clay, suspended by the WBA for signing a return-

OUTDOORS with Alec Merriman

Although there are still salmon to be taken at a few places in the saltchuck the big excitement in the outdoors is the rivers and lakes.

The reports are just about all good, but that doesn't mean you can expect to go out and catch limit catches at any time. At least we have never found it that way.

Car salesman Pat Russell limited at the top end of Cowichan Lake at the weekend with the biggest one in the seven-pound class. Trout are being taken in good numbers pretty well all over the lake and a few good rains should see that sometimes-fabulous drift fishing at the top end of the river come on good.

As soon as the lake gets a little higher and starts pouring over the weir the trout drop down into the river to feed on eggs from spawning salmon.

Then fly fishermen have the times of their lives drifting the river, or anchoring in midstream and letting a red hack or salmon egg fly bounce along the bottom until a trout grabs it in mistake for an egg.

Brown trout fishing has been good in the Skutz Falls area and there should be cutthroats near the mouth. Spin-casters are taking salmon the full length of the river, but remember the limit is two spring or coho and jigging is illegal. Worse, it is poor sportsmanship. This river salmon fishing is the kind of fishing where you can have your fun by playing the fish and then returning it to the river, unless it is in the very best of condition.

The Nitinat River is giving up coho in first class condition up to 20 pounds, but we didn't find the cutthroat at the weekend.

Koksilah River is producing some nice trout and so are Somenos and Quamichan Lakes. Elk and Prospect Lakes have been good for those using spinner and worms and in the evenings for fly fishermen.

Cutthroat fishing at the mouths of all rivers is reported from the Nanaimo area. Earle Gravelle reports some good fishing in Sprout Lake. Stan Ross says Great Central Lake trout fishing has been good and the coho are going through the lake now.

Cameron Lake is giving up a few trout. Some fish are reported in Taylor River. Steelhead are in the Ash and Stamp Rivers, but they are black in the Ash. Elsie and Dixon Lakes, with weekend access only, are producing limit catches.

Murray Cree reports cutthroat in mouths of Big and Little Qualicum. John Ebert reports good trout fishing in Campbell River area in both rivers and lakes.

Salmon fishing is pretty slow, but there are still indications of a late run to Cowichan Bay. Bruce Colegray and Paul and Lena Jones picked up three Wednesday in the centre between Wilcuma and Separation Point on bucktail flies.

Al Price picked up an 18.6-pound coho in the same waters the same day and several others landed coho. Colegray said they were "fresh as a daisy" but he reports many of his fish from Cowichan Bay this season have had net marks on them.

Winter springs are being taken at Sooke, Pedder Bay, Esquimalt Harbor and off the Victoria waterfront.

Saanich Inlet at the Brentwood end is full of grise and the odd spring and coho is being taken off Bamberton and from Willis Point through McKenzie Bay. Minnow Teasers are getting small salmon off Chesterfield Rock. Friday H. Nelson picked up a 23.4-pound spring on Strip-Tearer off the White Lady.

Tahsis Co. president J. V. Christensen has announced his company will rebuild the 18-acre campsite on Muchalat Lake. The campsite was destroyed by fire in September, two days after it was completed. The campsite, built for public use under the company's philosophy of multiple use of forest lands, will be made "an attractive place again in time for campers next spring," he said. Some of the larger fish survived the forest fire and the company will clean out the debris, plant new trees, grass and ferns.

The campsite is on Muchalat Lake 10 miles north of the new town of Gold River.

Victoria Fish and Game Club's annual turkey shoot will be Dec. 11 and 12 and Lucky Circle cards, at 50 cents a chance, are already out and chances may be bought from members or at sporting goods stores. These circles make an opportunity for those who appreciate the work of the club, especially in regard to public access, to contribute and still stand to win a turkey. Club revenue is down about $400, mainly because of loss of membership because of the public access to hunting areas.

Hunters who purchased the $5 mountain sheep tag licence and were not able to use them because of the hunting closure in the East Kootenays may apply for a refund by returning the uncanceled tag licence to the fish and game branch at the legislative buildings before Dec. 31, 1965.

Taylor Bad Legs Beating Taylor

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Jim Taylor, off to his worst start since becoming a National Football League regular, says he isn't alarmed and his sound ankles couldn't cure.

The Green Bay Packers full-back, whose record includes an unprecedented five straight 1,000-yard seasons, has only scored one touchdown this season while carrying the ball 72 times for 224 yards and a 3.1 average.

Last year, Taylor produced 1,168 yards rushing for a 5.0 average and 12 touchdowns. "The difference is one leg," said the bull-necked 215-pound fullback. "I'm still as fast as I ever was but I haven't had 100 per cent drive off my right leg."

Taylor injured his ankle against St. Louis Cardinals in Green Bay's first pre-season game. He played little against Pittsburgh Steelers in the season's opener and sat out the next game against Baltimore Colts. He has seen extensive action since then but has not been hitting the holes with his old-time authority.

The 30-year-old Taylor, who is the Packers' all-time leading rusher and third in the NFL behind Jimmy Brown and Joe Perry, is in his eighth season.

Crosby Seeking NHL Franchise

TORONTO (CP)—Singer Bing Crosby says he is a member of a group trying to obtain a National Hockey League franchise for San Francisco in 1967.

"But there's another group, too, and we plan to get together soon and see if we can come up with one application."

Reed Near Cinch For Rushing Title

REGINA (CP)—George Reed, Saskatchewan Roughriders' nominee as most outstanding football player in Canada, appears to have the individual rushing title in the Western Football Conference locked up.

WFC statistics released Wednesday showed the talented Rider fullback has 1,624 yards on 237 carries, the fifth-highest total in league history, and needs 170 yards to equal the all-time record of 1,794 set in 1961 by Earl Lunsford of the Calgary Stampeders.

ONE-GAME MARK Reed, who set a new league single-game individual record of 288 yards rushing Sunday when the Roughriders downed B.C. Lions 30-14, gets his chance for a new season record Saturday when the Roughriders play against the Eskimos in Edmonton.

Reed's nearest rival in the rushing derby is Lovell Coleman of Calgary. The 1964 rushing champion, Coleman has 1,360 yards on 213 carries.

CATCHING BATTLE Tommy-Joe Coffey of Edmonton and Hugh Campbell of Saskatchewan continue their battle for top honors in the passing department. Coffey has 75 receptions; good for 1,210 yards, and two touchdowns.

Campbell is out in front in yards gained on receptions with 1,301. The Rider flanker has caught 71 passes and has nine touchdowns. He also holds the lead in average yards gained per pass with an 18.3 mark.

ONE-TWO Joe Kapp of B.C. and Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan remain one-two in the passing race with Kapp out in front in completions with 206, compared with 155 by Lancaster.

Kapp's passes have accounted for 14 touchdowns and 2,202 yards and Lancaster has thrown 16 touchdowns passes and has accounted for 2,523 yards.

Randy Kerbow of Edmonton and Martin Fabi of Saskatchewan share the lead in the punting race with 42.4 yards-per-kick averages. Kerbow has punted 109 times for 4,624 yards and Fabi has punted 84 times for 3,566 yards.

Gene Wlasnik of Saskatchewan is out in front in the punt return race with 490 yards on 76 returns, and Dick Wozney of Winnipeg is next with 364 yards on 60 returns.

Dave Raimey is leading the way in the kickoff returns with a sparkling 28.8 average on 22 chances. He has accumulated 635 yards. Ted Woods of Calgary is the runner-up with 503 yards on 19 returns — a 28.0 average.

Canada's 1964 Winter Olympic skiing team at Innsbruck, Austria, finished 12th with 77 feet. The other Canadian competitor, 19-year-old Janice Griffiths of Toronto, Canadian women's open champion of 1963-64, withdrew.

Miss Allan, from Winter Park, Fla., jumped far beyond the previous world record, set at 86.2 feet two years ago.

BRISBANE (Reuters) — Elizabeth Allan, 14-year-old American schoolgirl, won the women's jump title in the world water ski championships Thursday.

The youngest competitor here, she cleared 101.71 feet to take the title from Britain's Jeanette Stewart-Wood, 19.

Miss Allan, from Winter Park, Fla., jumped far beyond the previous world record, set at 86.2 feet two years ago.

Old Fashioned Way Best

Grape presses are all right, but this is best way to turn grapes into wine, according to Dane Campbell, 10901 Madrona Drive, who owns feet, crock and will own wine when it is ready.

Dane takes five pounds of green Saanich grapes to make one gallon of juice, then adds water, sugar, yeast, loving care and enough time. —(Dane Campbell)

King May Visit South Africa

JOHANNESBURG (UPI)—he does not believe American, negro leader Martin Luther King will be restricted if he visits here next year as planned.

"I see no restrictions being imposed on Dr. King, provided he receives a visa to enter South Africa," Peter Mansfield said.

Mr. Mansfield said he had not yet received an official acceptance from Mr. King to his invitation to open the NUSAS congress at Durban in 1966. Invitations were sent in August and again this week.

"If he has accepted I will be pleased and hope that, contrary to speculation, he will be granted a visa," Mr. Mansfield said.

"He was invited because of the interest which had been shown by people of South Africa in civil rights movements Mr. Mansfield said.

"King's moderate leadership has impressed many people."

Suicide Squads Hunted After U.S. Aircraft Hit

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. Marines fanned out Thursday in search of Viet Cong commandos who destroyed or damaged 47 aircraft in co-ordinated midnight mortar-and-hand grenade attacks on two bases 60 miles apart. Eighteen of the 22 damaged Marine helicopters at Da Nang took part in the futile day-long guerrilla hunt.

There was no letup in the air war against the Communist north. (In Washington, officials said another U.S. plane had been shot down over North Viet Nam by a Soviet-supplied surface-to-air missile. The officials indicated the plane was lost Wednesday or early Thursday. It was the sixth American plane listed as downed by Communist missiles in the war.)

Viet Cong suicide squads struck at the Marine airbases at Da Nang and Chu Lai after slipping through the American defence perimeters.

Security Council Again Boycotted

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The UN Security Council met again Thursday on the Indian-Pakistan dispute, but did not resolve differences among the big powers on how to strengthen its efforts to bring about a peaceful solution.

India again boycotted the meeting.

The six non-permanent members of the 11-nation council were working on a resolution that would approve steps taken already by Secretary-General U Thant to implement the council's demand for a ceasefire and troop withdrawals.

Diplomatic sources said this met opposition from the Soviet Union, which has criticized Thant for sending new observers to patrol the ceasefire line.

POLITICAL ISSUE
The sources said also that France and the Soviet Union were at odds over references to previous council requests that negotiations take place to resolve the basic political issue of the dispute—the future of Kashmir. The sources said the Soviet Union opposed such reference and France wanted it.

India is boycotting the sessions on the grounds the council's deliberations should take up only implementation of the ceasefire and withdrawal of troops.

A final assessment of the damages in the attacks showed that 18 helicopters were destroyed and 22 damaged at the Marble Mountain air complex just east of Da Nang. Two A-4 Skyhawks were destroyed at Chu Lai, 60 miles to the south, and six others damaged, three so badly they will be shipped to Japan for rebuilding.

10,000,000 LOOSHS
U.S. officials said the twin raids caused estimated damages of $10,000,000. They said the Skyhawks cost about $2,500,000 each and the helicopters range from $200,000 to $250,000 each.

The Marines said they killed 41 Viet Cong and wounded and captured six others during the raids that were launched around midnight. Marine casualties were reported light.

EARN MUCH FROM WEAPON
Britain's export orders for its Bloodhound anti-aircraft rocket total more than $1,000,000,000.

The Policies of the Liberal Party

GENERAL ELECTION 1963

The purpose of this statement is to give you a clear understanding of what you will be doing by entrusting the country's affairs to a new Liberal government

FULL EMPLOYMENT AND NEW INDUSTRY

Set up a Federal Department of Industry. The department will work out, industry by industry, what can be done to promote new production in Canada at economic costs.

Reform taxes

Taxes will be reviewed, in order to make them fair and to encourage enterprise and lower the barriers to business expansion. Special tax incentives will be provided to new industries in areas where new job opportunities are most needed, and also to companies that increase their exports.

Expand trade

A new Liberal government will work with Britain, the United States, European and other free countries in programmes for progressively reducing the barriers to trade.

Set up a National Development Corporation

This corporation will seek capital from the public and private investors and the government will join together to finance new enterprises in Canada. The aim of the corporation will be to increase Canadian production and to reverse the trend toward absentee ownership of Canadian industry.

Make loans and grants for municipal services

We need better streets and roads to reduce traffic congestion, better public transit, less pollution, more schools and parks. A Municipal Development Loan Fund will be established to provide capital for sound municipal improvements which provincial governments approve but for which financing is at present inadequate. The fund will play a big part in creating new jobs.

Increase construction of low-rental homes

Low homes for rent are the positive side of slum clearance. A new Liberal government will join with the provinces and municipalities in a major campaign. It will give special attention to the housing needs of old-age pensioners.

Extend National Housing legislation to provide insured mortgages for the purchase of existing homes as well as for building new homes

This broadening, under proper safeguards, will enable more Canadians to become home-owners and to move more easily to new jobs.

Improve rural housing

A new Liberal government will extend National Housing legislation for the improvement of farm homes and other dwellings in rural areas.

Set up a National Economic Council

A National Economic Council will be set up to study the needs and potentialities of the economy, to analyze what is going on and what is planned, and to recommend measures to bring the activity of our economy up to its full potential. The Council's members will have a wide variety of experience in business, in labour matters, in farming and in government, and they will be assisted by an expert staff.

INVESTMENT IN SKILL

Training for better jobs

A new Liberal government, at the request of the provinces, will provide expert and full-scale assistance in operating wide-ranging services for job training. Training courses will be open to all Canadians, men and women, who want to learn new skills. A new organization will be set up to direct this programme.

Assist re-training courses within industry

In cooperation with the National Economic Council, the proposed organization will look ahead to see which jobs will offer more opportunities in the future and which—because of automation or other changes or for other reasons—will offer fewer opportunities. At the same time it will work with industry in setting up training courses, so that workers can obtain the necessary broadening of skills before, not after unemployment strikes.

Pay supplementary benefits for re-training and to the long-term unemployed

In order to overcome the effects of automation and to enable people to broaden their opportunities of employment, workers will get financial help while training and in meeting the expenses of moving. This help will come from general government revenues; it will not be an additional demand on the unemployment insurance fund. It will be continued after re-training, if a man or woman who is the main support of a household remains unavoidably unemployed.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR YOUTH

Extend family allowances beyond the age of sixteen for boys and girls who remain students. Establish Canada Scholarships for university education

Scholarships, now valued at $1,000 a year for four years, will be made available to able students who need assistance to go to university. The awards will be open to all and will be made on merit. The administration of the plan will be independent of government.

Set up a student loan fund

All qualified university students will be able to borrow, if necessary, for tuition and other needs. The fund will be independently administered. Loans will be interest free during the period of study and for the first year afterwards, and will then be repayable, plus interest, within a reasonable period.

Improve public financing for the universities

This is a continuation of established Liberal policy. It is an increasingly important investment for the conditions of today and the progress of the country.

PENSIONS

Establish a national contributory pension plan

The plan will provide pensions in addition to the existing federal pension. It will not be financed from taxes but from contributions, of a small percentage of earnings, from all employers and employees and from self-employed people if they choose to join. Both the contributions required and the pensions available under the plan will build up over a ten-year period. This transition period will enable existing pension schemes to be fitted smoothly with the new plan, without loss of rights in the existing schemes. Pension benefits will be made fully portable when people change their jobs.

Make possible retirement on half pay at 65

People will soon be able to choose when, between the ages of 65 and 70, they wish to start drawing the pension based on their contributions plus the existing federal pension. The contributory benefit will be based on average earnings during the best years of working life. If the pension begins at age 65, the pension will be about one-third less than it would be if begun at age 70.

For a man of about average earnings—$360 a month—the total pension when he begins drawing the pension available at age 65 will be $240 a month; that is, half his earnings while working. If he continues to work after 65, the pension available will be $250 a month at age 70. For a single person the equivalent pension, when the plan is in full effect, will be $135 at age 65, $185 at age 70.

For a man whose earnings have been lower, the total pension will be a bigger proportion of earnings. For example, from earnings of $240 a month it will be, at age 65, $150 for a couple or $105 for a single person. Or, at age 70, it will be $210 for a couple or $145 for a single person. If earnings have been $300 a month (the maximum covered by the plan) the pension at age 65 will be $240 for a couple or $170 for a single person; at age 70 it will be $295 for a couple or $231 for a single person.

In the case of couples, the wife's portion of the pension will be paid to her directly as it is at present.

These pension rates will be reached in ten years. The rates for people who retire in the interval will be steadily raised towards the new levels.

Provide pensions for the disabled and for widows and orphans

The contributory plan will make provision for people who are disabled, and unable to work, before reaching 65. In the event of death, the widow or orphan will receive the benefits. These provisions of the plan will be submitted to the provinces for constitutional agreement.

Encourage self-employed people to contribute to the pension plan

The self-employed will not have to join the plan but will be able to do so on terms which will be very worthwhile for people with small or moderate incomes.

Establish a new national minimum of $75 a month pension

To help people already retired, who have not had the chance to contribute under the new Liberal plan, a minimum supplementary pension of $10 a month will be paid, from the start, out of the pension fund established by contributions. This will raise the total old-age pension to $75 for a single or widowed person, $140 for a married couple.

Increase old-age assistance to $75 a month

Assistance is available in cases of need, for people aged 65 to 69. To cover the transition period until the contributory pension plan is in full effect, this assistance will be increased in co-operation with the provinces.

Make the $75 old-age assistance available to single women and widows at age 60

Many companies retire men at 65 but women at 60. Earlier assistance will therefore be made available to women, in co-operation with the provinces.

Increase allowances for the blind and disabled to $75 a month

In co-operation with the provinces, these allowances will be raised in line with pensions and old age assistance. There will be an increase in the amount of other income permitted.

HEALTH CARE

The objective of the Liberal Party is to establish, in co-operation with the provinces, a medical care plan for all Canadians.

The plan will enable everyone to get health care at the time it is needed, without fear of crippling medical bills. There will be no restrictive conditions. The patient will be free to choose his doctor on a fee-for-service basis.

The medical care plan will cover costs of doctors' and diagnostic services, in the office, home or hospital, by general practitioners, surgeons and specialists. The federal plan will pay for all these services to children up to the time they leave school, and for people over the age of 65. For other Canadians the plan will cover doctors' bills above $25 per person a year (for a somewhat higher figure for those with large incomes.)

A Liberal government would co-operate with the provinces and the doctors. The Liberal plan will be put to a federal-provincial conference and thoroughly discussed with the medical profession and other interested organizations.

LABOUR

Encourage Industrial Councils

There is urgent need for better relations between management and workers, working together to improve industrial efficiency as well as pay and conditions, and to increase employment and improve job security. A new Liberal government will vigorously encourage the formation of industrial councils for these purposes and will consult with labour organizations about appointments to government councils and boards.

Speed up conciliation procedures

With the help of trade unions and industry, a new Liberal government will improve conciliation, without lessening freedom of negotiation. Liberalism is opposed to limits on the right to strike and upholds the right of reinstatement at the conclusion of a strike.

Provide collective bargaining for federal civil servants

All federal employees should have the right to collective bargaining procedures with provision for binding arbitration.

Restore the unemployment insurance fund

The fund was designed to deal with short-term unemployment. It has been depleted, because long-term unemployment has become chronic. A new Liberal government will restore the fund and with policies of economic expansion, return it to its proper function. In fairness to all workers, a new Liberal government will be firm in preventing abuse of the fund by people who are not genuinely seeking jobs.

Pay unemployment benefits to people who are out of work because of illness

This will be done on the same basis as unemployment benefits for people who lose their jobs for other reasons.

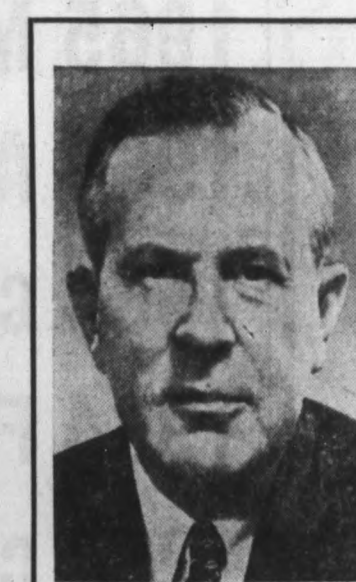

The coverage of unemployment insurance

Those who need coverage include many farm workers and groups in the service trades, as far as is administratively practicable. The coverage formerly given to casual workers will be restored.

BETTER MARKETS FOR FARMERS

Make National marketing possible

A new Liberal government will promptly seek agreement with the provinces on a plan which would enable marketing boards and co-operatives to operate on a national scale. In such cases, the government would grant special powers to the marketing boards and co-operatives for orderly marketing. The new Liberal government will provide loans and other encouragement for the efficient development of producer co-operatives.

L. B. Pearson says:

More than anything else, Canada needs a government with purpose . . . a government with clearly-stated objectives for the country's economic future and for the people's well being. That kind of government—purposeful and decisive—can only come from a party that knows where it's going.

Our objectives are clear:

1. To provide decisive government so that Parliament can do its job.
2. To harness the energies and brains of labour, management, farm groups and government in an expanding economy that will create the jobs and job-security that all Canadians must have.
3. When this has been accomplished, to make sure that all Canadians share fairly the benefits of economic growth.

We ask for this great responsibility, knowing that the job to be done is an enormous and difficult challenge. We ask you to join with us on election day so that a decisive Liberal government can get down to business, and achieve these objectives.

In this spirit I ask you to vote for your Liberal candidate on Monday, April 8.

Additional Accomplishments

- (1) New Labour Code
- (2) A distinctive flag
- (3) Free trade in automobiles
- (4) 10% income tax cut
- (5) Columbia River Treaty and many others

Communication

Teen-Agers Give Typical Answers

(On the following dispatch, the first of three about the communication gap between teen-agers and parents, contestants in the Miss Teen-Age America pageant speak up about the problem.)

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—The communication gap between teen-agers and parents ranks as the number one problem on thousands of homefronts nationwide.

The adolescents gab for hours on the phone or away from home. Parents converse with ease over the fence or at the supermarket. But each strangely grows silent when it comes to anything but "small-talk" between them.

UPI asked contestants in the Miss Teen-Age America pageant in Dallas, Tex., about the problem.

Here are typical answers to the question: "Why do you think some teen-agers can't talk to their parents?"

"Some teen-agers are just too immature to get along with their parents, or anyone for that matter who is, in any way, personally concerned with them," said Maile Imellas, 16, Miss Teen-Age Stockton, Calif. "Some teen-agers do not realize that the problem lies within themselves, and would rather blame their parents. . . . This type of person has much growing up to do in order to realize that co-operation with a dash of patience and level-headedness could spell happiness for all involved."

"Most families nowadays are split into two divisions—the parent and the child," said Georgiana Calley, 17, Miss Teen-Age Portland, Ore. "If the teen-ager feels his parents are too busy he will not bring his problems to the parent. This is resultant from the lack of family unity."

"Many kids are actually afraid of their parents," said Linnea Sullivan, 17, Miss Teen-Age Dallas, Texas. "They feel that the difference in age creates a lack of understanding on the part of the parent. This situation usually springs from failure to develop a close parent-child relationship early in life."

"Many teen-agers feel that just because their parents happen to ridicule their popular music or disagree with their style of clothes the younger generation happens to be wearing, they will not understand the emotional problems of teen-agers," said Rosemary Hager, 16, Miss Teen-Age Pittsburgh, Pa. "Therefore, teen-agers are too embarrassed to come to their parents for advice because they are afraid their parents will not understand."

"I think that many teen-agers think that their parents were born 39 or 40 years old," said Marjanne Anzalone, 17, Miss Teen-Age Philadelphia, of Springfield, Pa. "They fail to realize that their parents were once teen-agers themselves, and that they were confronted with similar problems."

Sandra Bradshaw was flower girl, wearing a dress of the same material and carrying a basket of pink flowers. George Lorne Tufnail as ring bearer was in miniature naval uniform. Best man was Mr. Stanley Westhaver, and ushers were the groom's brothers, Mr. Robert Martin and Mr. Alan Martin. A reception was held at the Carlton Club, and later as the couple left on their honeymoon the bride wore a turquoise three-piece wool suit made by her mother, with black accessories.

Table Topic Quiz

Victoria Toastmistress Club No. 90, met recently at the Pacific Club with Mrs. T. Y. Grant officiating. The theme was "Women of the World"—a way of life of women in different countries. Speeches were made by Mrs. P. A. Petersen on China, Mrs. K. S. Bains on Egypt, Miss D. Lantz on India, Mrs. J. Wiant on Sweden and Mrs. E. Speers on Spain. All the speeches were designated to give information on the everyday life of the average woman of the country concerned.

Mrs. Tita Hong presented the table topic in the manner of a quiz. She gave a short biography of a famous woman and the members were to list them correctly. The winner, Mrs. P. A. Petersen, received a hand painted Chinese print.

Critics were Mrs. T. Y. Grant and Mrs. F. Hong, vote of thanks given by Miss D. Keppel, and general evaluator was Mrs. C. C. Warren. Mrs. Warren presented the Spur to Miss D. Lantz and the oscar to Mrs. E. Speers.

The next meeting on Nov. 2, will be the 20th anniversary of the Victoria Toastmistress Club. Special guests will be Mrs. M. Lopatecki, Chairman of Council No. 10, and Mrs. S. McCulloch, regional treasurer.

Pro Patria Bazaar Nov. 5

The Ladies Auxiliary to Pro Patria Branch No. 31, Royal Canadian Legion, met in the Legion Hall with Mrs. W. Trace presiding.

It was announced that the District Zone Council meeting will be held in the Legion Britannia Branch Hall, on Friday, Oct. 29.

The Pro Patria annual bazaar, will be held in the Courtney Street Hall, on Friday, Nov. 5, when it is expected to be officially opened by Mr. Syd Watson. Mrs. L. Foster is general convener, and there will be a variety of stalls. Tea will be served.

Poppy Tag Day, will be held on Saturday, Nov. 6, and on Sunday, Nov. 7, members will parade to St. John's Anglican Church on Quadra Street.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I was discussing divorce with an acquaintance and she said, "Divorce is not always a mistake. Look at your father. He and your mother are very happy."

I told her she was mistaken—that my father had no previous marriage. She insisted I was wrong and named a woman she said was my father's first wife. I was sure she was misinformed and said so.

Last night I told my father what the "wacky" girl had said. His face turned scarlet. My mother left the room. To my horror I learned that my father had indeed been married before. I asked the name of his first wife and it was the same name my friend had mentioned.

I am so hurt and humiliated I'll never be able to look that girl in the eye again. I asked my father why he never told me. (I am 18.) He said he saw no reason to. Is he right?—CRUSHED.

Dear Crushed: No. Parents should tell their children of previous marriages because such information is less painful when learned early and first-hand. Skeletons are for anatomy classes, not closets.

Dear Ann Landers: Is the change of life making me grouchy or do I have a right to complain?

Almost every weekend I am "drafted" to take care of my grandchildren. Our daughters drop their youngsters here on Friday and pick them up on Sunday. They make plans to leave town weekends and tell me about it after everything is set. It never occurs to them that I may have plans.

I used to be a cateress. My recipes are the finest but my energy isn't what it used to be. My daughters give me a list of things they want when they entertain. They flatter me by saying, "Nobody in the world bakes like you, Mom."

choose the money and you'd end up with a broken home. Forget it.

I know they take advantage of me and I get mad at myself for being an easy mark, but what can a mother say?—BECK'N CALL.

Dear Beck: A mother can say, "Look, girls. Don't count on me as a week-end sitter any more because I'd like to make a few plans of my own. If I want to take your kids I'll let you know. And please don't ask me to bake for your parties. Here are my recipes and good luck to you all. (And good luck to you, too!)"

Dear Ann Landers: My wife and I have been married for 14 years. Lydia is dominating and temperamental, but I've swallowed my pride for the sake of the children. Never once in her life has she admitted she was wrong. When we disagree about the meaning of a word and I prove by the dictionary that I am right, Lydia says, "What makes you think Webster never made a mistake?"

I earn a fairly good salary but it's never enough. This is the cause of our trouble. Ever since we've been married Lydia has been getting a monthly cheque from her parents. If I say we can't afford something she writes for extra money. When I tell her it makes me look a failure, she says, "Well—you are."

Is there a solution to my problem?—MR. INADEQUATE

Dear Mr.: You recite Lydia's faults without realizing that you share responsibility for the sad state of your marriage. A husband who allows his wife to accept monthly cheques from her parents (for 14 years yet) earns the poor opinion she has of him.

In my book, the cure you're asking for would be worse than the sickness. You'd have to tell Lydia to choose between you and the parental subsidy. She'd

Candlelight Ceremonies

Sorority Members Pledged

Victoria Golf Club was the scene Thursday evening of a reception honoring 24 members of Beta Sigma Phi who received pins in three separate candlelight ceremonies.

Mrs. A. C. D. Budd, city council president; Miss Elizabeth Forbes, Mrs. W. R. Clark and Mrs. E. V. Finland, received the members.

Ritual of jewels was conferred upon Midge Bryant, Judy Dagg, Nita Grant, Kay Kachor, Ann Larsen, Vivian Mills, Cathy Parsons, and Nancy Schwabe by officiant Mrs. A. C. D. Budd, who was assisted by the vice-presidents of the chapters.

Receiving pins in the pledge ritual, conducted by Omicron Chapter, were Janet Arkell, Joy Campbell, Bonnie Cliff, Edna Holley, Margaret Harris, Ellen Lewis, Donna Lowe, Elizabeth Morrison, Marlene Parfitt, Pat Prince, Pamela Trueman and Patricia Tubman.

In a candlelight ceremony, conducted by Xi Xi Chapter

Ginny Martin, Glenda White, Gloria Laurie and Mary-Ann Bryant received the pledge ritual for Nu Phi Mu.

A welcome address was given to the new members by Mrs. R. H. Lott. Miss Audrey Kelly brought congratulations to the ritual of jewels candidates and Miss Dawn Wootton delivered a message to the Nu Phi Mu.

Another highlight of the evening was the presentation of the Beta Sigma Phi English scholarship (Western Region) in the amount of $1,000 to Miss Donna E. Smyth.

Miss Smyth is a fourth year student in Arts and Science at University of Victoria. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Ivan Smyth of Kimberley, B.C., where she was born and received all her schooling up to Grade XIII.

Following the rituals and presentation, light refreshments were served to 125 Beta Sigma Phis.

Winner's Wife Quick to Act

MELBOURNE, Australia — Club steward Ernest Galbraith won $103,200 Australian ($249,744) with the first two tickets he has ever bought in the state lottery, the Victoria state lottery. Galbraith, married with two children, said he will take a few weeks off duty "to think about it." His wife works as a butcher shop cashier. She quit on the spot.

ROCHESTER — Jazz great Earl Bostic, 52, has died at Highland Hospital after a heart attack. The New Orleans orchestra leader and saxophone player began his career as a sideman in the orchestras of Lionel Hampton, Cab Calloway and Don Redmon until 1945 when he formed his own band. JUAREZ, Mexico — Mrs. John A. Roosevelt, wife of the youngest son of the late U.S. president Franklin D. Roosevelt, has obtained a "quickie" Mexican divorce. Mrs. Roosevelt, the former Anne Lindsay Clarke, divorced her husband of 27 years on grounds of incompatibility.

CLARKSON, Ont. — John Kane, president of Local 953 of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union (OCA), has sent two telegrams to Prime Minister Pearson protesting the federal government's use of petroleum products produced at the British American Oil Co.'s plant here.

SYDNEY, N.S.W. — Oldrich Bartosek, a 45-year-old coal miner, was sentenced to a year in prison for tying his 15-year-old son to a tree overnight with a dog chain. "The boy's only fault apparently is that he was seeing his mother against your wishes," Magistrate N. Fegan told Bartosek.

OTTAWA — External Affairs Minister Paul Martin has announced the appointment of veteran diplomat Ross Campbell as Canada's first ambassador to Algeria. Campbell, 46, current ambassador to Yugoslavia, will make regular visits to Algeria from Belgrade.

EDINBURGH — Maurice Heggie, 44, chairman of Edinburgh road safety committee, was fined $70 and disqualified from driving for 18 months when he pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while unfit through drink.

GENEVA — Yul Brynner has announced that another Christmas record has been produced for sale to benefit the UN high commission for refugees. "We are offering to airlines passengers the chance to send greeting cards to their friends under the slogan 'While I am Flying I am Thinking of You.' The record is to be sold by stewardesses on European and Australian airlines.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa — Mrs. Lillian Alexander and her eight children have left Cape town aboard the liner Pendennis Castle bound for Canada on an exit permit which does not allow her re-entry into South Africa. She is joining her colored teach-

Reporter Not Up to It

By BOB PETHICK
Want to upset your ego?
It's simple — take the armed forces physical fitness tests.
Admiral M. G. Stirling, Flag Officer Pacific Coast, took them. He passed.

Then there was me, scoop shovel of the Daily Colonist. I flunked.

It took the instructors at HMCS Naden gymnasium just 20 minutes to reduce 197 pounds of sylphlike, relaxed muscle into something approximating a basket case.

The exercises, it is said, are simple.

Seven chin-ups if you are under 30; five chin-ups under 40 and four chin-ups if over 40. Now comes the bitter part—the chin-up bar is about nine feet off the ground and you don't get a pass just for jumping up and grabbing it. Scratch that test.

Next come sit-ups, 35 for under-30s; 25 for under-40s and 21 for over-40s. I fell four short in my category and I've got the backache to prove it.

As if this isn't enough they told me I have to run 600 yards, but head physical training officer, Lt.-Cmdr. Reg Mylrea, noted my green pallor and blue lips and the color clash offended

French Test Air Train

PARIS (AP) — Tests of a newly-conceived French "aero-train" will begin in January, the government announced Thursday. The train, designed to run on an air cushion and be guided by a central rail, will be for rapid passenger transport between closely situated cities and airports and cities.

FIND GIANT SKELETON

The fossil remains of a 75-foot marine dinosaur of 120,000,000 years ago have been found near Calizdorp, South America.

There has to be another way him, I was let off with 100 yards bracket. So I really blew it. Sent to the showers, a sadder but much wiser man.

And to really hurt a guy the navy says in these tests, which are being given to all 5,000 men of the armed forces in this area, the highest percentage of passes is in the 40-and-over bracket. Sorry about that. Maybe next time.

But the funny thing was, when I mentioned next time to Lt.-Cmdr. Mylrea, who originally devised the exercises for the navy, he just smiled. He knew I'd had enough.

Thousands of Years Before Columbus

Siberians First to New World

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—You can forget the argument over whether the Norse or Italians discovered the New World, a University of Pennsylvania professor said Wednesday.

The Japanese probably beat them both by about 7,000 years and Siberians were thousands of years earlier, according to the Penn archeologist.

Froelich G. Rainey, director of the university's museum said Wednesday that excavations in Alaska during the summer uncovered tiny flint blades dating back to 6,000 B.C. He said the blades were similar to those uncovered previously in the Aleutian Islands and the eastern coast of Japan.

"This would indicate that the first settlers in this hemisphere migrated by foot from the eastern coast of Asia via the Aleutians, along the southern edge of a huge land mass that is now the Bering Sea," he said. Rainey said he and Brown University archeologists found the flints on the Kobuk River about 100 miles inland from the port city Kotzebue at a crossing used by herds of migrating Caribou for thousands of years.

SIBERIA ROUTE
He said the discovery "may revise our ideas about how people first came to this country for another reason."

"For while evidence of migration from Siberia was turned up in Alaska 15 years ago," he said, "it was thought that these crossings occurred in 15,000 to 20,000 B.C."

"These new findings indicate that the migrations lasted much longer than was previously believed. And they may have taken place along a different route—the Aleutians."

Rainey said eight distinct levels were uncovered in the excavations and radio-carbon analysis showed they represented civilizations at 1,000 year intervals from 6,000 B.C. to the present.

The time we could spend trying to look different, we spend getting better.

We're not saying it's wrong to look different every year. Quite a few people do it.

And they're very successful at it.

It's just that we'd rather put our time and money into getting better every year. Making improvements.

As you probably know, change is against our principles. Take the front of the Volkswagen, for instance.

We could have taken the time to fuss about with fat fenders and big, chrome-covered grilles.

But we kept the sloping nose you're used to. So you can still see a lot of road.

What we did do with our time is add another defroster vent below the front windshield. So you see a lot of road more clearly in rainy or snowy weather.

Our attitude was just about the same at the back of the VW.

We didn't spend our time dressing it up with fancy fins. We just lifted up the back hood and made our engine bigger. It's got 8 1/2 more horsepower this year. And it's still just as economical.

And we did some other things to the Volkswagen that we wouldn't have had time for if we'd played with the styling.

Like improving the door locks. Adding a four-way emergency flasher. Installing automatic safety locks on the front-sept back rests. And brightening up the interiors with attractive new colour.

Why not visit a Volkswagen dealer and see just how much time we've spent getting better this year?

You'll see quite a difference.

Garden Notes

No Orchard Needed

By M. V. CHESNUT

Of all the thrills and satisfactions we enjoy in the pursuit of our favorite hobby, gardening, I don't know of any which can compare with picking and eating your own sun-ripened fruit from your very own trees.

It isn't only the flavor of the fruit, which is incomparably better in fruit which has been allowed to ripen naturally as against the commercial stuff which was picked a little on the green side and held in cold storage. There is also the all-consuming interest and excitement which comes from following the growth and development of your trees from their baby stage right through to the point when the luscious, sun-warmed fruit is ready to pick. With tree-planting time arrived, I think we might spend the next few days discussing the choosing, buying and planting of fruit trees.

Until fairly recent years, you had to have a pretty big garden before you could ever think of growing any tree fruit, for a full-grown apple or pear tree was an enormous thing, casting so much shade that nothing else could be grown near it. Nowadays, thanks to the work of the Malling Research Institute in England, it is possible to buy your trees grafted on to special dwarfing roots which keep them from growing to more than six or eight feet tall.

These dwarf fruit trees are not special varieties; you can get almost any variety of apple or pear you want, in dwarf form. The fruit is identical in every way—size, shape, color and flavor—with the same variety grown on the conventional big tree. A McIntosh apple, for instance, is a McIntosh whether it comes from a big tree or a dwarf. You get more apples from a big tree, of course, but you can plant more dwarf trees in the same area of ground, and you can actually harvest more fruit per acre from dwarf trees than from big ones because of this closer spacing.

One of the biggest advantages of the dwarf fruit tree is the speed with which it comes into bearing. A big apple tree, for instance, could take as long as 15 years before it starts producing any fruit, while the dwarfs will usually start bearing the second year after planting, although maximum production isn't reached until the fourth year.

Another important advantage is that, with their small size, you have room to plant more than one variety, which makes for cross-pollination and heavier crops. It is a common thing for a fruit tree to drop all its fruits while they are still very small, because the blossoms were not pollinated; there was no suitable or compatible "husband" tree nearby. With a well-chosen collection of dwarf trees, each one works to benefit its mates. Moreover, it is a treat to the palate to have a variety of flavors rather than eating the same kind of apples all winter.

These little trees are highly ornamental too, and are therefore especially fitted for the home garden. They may be planted in the shrub border, or even right out in the middle of the front lawn, although where space permits, you can give your trees somewhat better care when they are grouped together in a small fruit garden to themselves.

As the dwarf trees may be planted as close as eight feet apart each way, quite a lot of fruit—and quite a variety—can be grown in a plot where even one full-size tree would crowd the garden. The dwarfs can be sprayed, pruned and harvested while standing on your own two feet, without any ladder.

SYDNEY HARRIS

Airs His Prejudices

Purely Personal Prejudices: When we attack a man as a "radical," we should distinguish between those who are going in the wrong direction and those who are simply going faster than we care to.

A surprisingly high percentage of writers began their careers as doctors or medical students, which indicates to me a strong affinity between medicine and the arts, and suggests that the practice of medicine must be at least as much an art as a science—a factor forgotten by too many doctors who are preoccupied with techniques.

Anyone who buys a home decoration or accessory as a "conversation piece" must be a terrible conversationalist. Speaking of that, I have always liked the comment of Bulwer-Lytton that "The true spirit of conversation consists in building on another man's observation, not over-turning it."

Why is it that women in riding clothes look dashing, while men in riding clothes (with few exceptions) look fatuous and affected? Also, it may not be without significance that pre-teen girls are absolutely mad about horses, while boys of the same age are generally cool to them.

Some weeks ago, I wrote a column about words that are invariably misprinted—like "casual" for "causal"—and should have added proper names that don't conform to common usage; for instance, recently I mentioned Verdi's opera, Otello—which some enterprising proof-reader promptly changed to Othello.

The most discreet, and yet explicit, letter of reference I have ever heard was a reply of a friend of mine made to a company asking for a reference on a former employee: "We have known Mr. X for a long time, and when you come to know him as well as we do, you will think the same of him as we do."

Fanatics are the worst enemies of the causes they espouse; the Puritan, for instance, has turned the word "morality" into a bad joke by insisting that many things are "immoral" which are merely objectionable to him—thus emptying this essential word of its proper content.

Except in such specialized locales as Italian street cafes, the accordion is an instrument I could cheerfully do without hearing the rest of my life.

Presumably, when God cast out the Devil, he shrugged his shoulders and excused himself by saying, "I'm only diabolic, after all." Everybody takes the lowest part of his nature and uses it as a justification for betraying the higher part.

Says STAN DELAPLANE

Lore Wasted

A phone call came in from London yesterday morning. It seems only yesterday—it was only yesterday—that I communicated with my fellow man with cat's whiskers.

We made our own radio sets. We called them "wireless" sets. Though heaven knows they were full of wire.

We wound copper wire on a Quaker Oats can. Put a brass rod with sliders on top—that was the tuning device. Put in a condenser. Hooked up a piece of galena crystal in a metal cup. Then we adjusted a cat's whisker piece of wire and searched for the sensitive spot on the galena. The earphones hissing softly in our ears.

We communicated at Boy Scout camps with semaphore flags. We learned code—dit dah dit.

We blazed trees. "Water nearby." Put rock on rock. "Trail starts here." Learned to build smoke fires. "I am lost."

What is all this knowledge put to? "London is calling," says the operator. "Go ahead, please." Hello, deh! An interesting communicator is the American antelope. The antelope is equipped with a Samuel Morse and Alexander Graham Bell.

Sending messages before Samuel Morse and Alexander Graham Bell.

Some years ago there was an international conference on the Origin of Life. It was held in Moscow.

While conferring, in came a telegram from Jungah, India: "Life under laboratory conditions created. Initial success. Further experiments on hand."

It was signed: "Lajji Bhai Patel."

I never heard anything more about it. Of life created. Or of Lajji Bhai Patel. Odd.

Remember When...

Asks HAL BOYLE

By HAL BOYLE To remember the past is to forget the present.

Memory serves as a pleasant form of anesthesia, shutting out the sounds of the rude world.

The clamor around you doesn't seem as important if you can sit back, relax and remember when—

Boys never wore their hair long after the age of seven. More people had ridden in balloons than in airplanes. The most delicious agony of childhood was spending a nickel in a penny candy store—there were so many tempting possibilities of choice.

There wasn't much future in life for a fellow who couldn't learn how to harness a team.

Everybody called you the teacher's pet if she let you take the blackboard erasers outside and dust them during class.

Physicians were warning that the new dance craze—the Charleston—could cause permanent back trouble as well as broken bones.

Fashionable women wore high-button shoes.

A fellow could make a living in vaudeville by imitating bird cries.

A sissy was any boy whose mother wouldn't let him go barefoot all summer. The hero was the first boy to stub his toe so badly he had to wear a bandage on it.

If a motorist drove more than 100 miles without getting a flat tire, he bragged about it for days.

A spendthrift was a fellow who bought a suit that had only one pair of pants.

If you lived on a farm you were a hayseed; if you lived in a town of more than 10,000 population you were a city slicker.

It was easy to tell which family was the richest in the block. They had venetian blinds instead of curtains in the front window.

Those were the days! Remember?

Rift Doubted

PARIS (NANA)—There are new rumors of trouble with Omar Sharif and his Egyptian movie star wife. But I doubt them. They seem to have a perfect understanding, and that's useful when you are separated by careers for months at a time.

It has not been all smooth sailing between star Jeanne Moreau and director Tony Richardson on the Mademoiselle picture located outside Bordeaux. Jeanne has not felt too well and they are somewhat behind schedule, which of course has irritated the British director. He is always a pessimist and never believes he has a hit until the cash rolls in at the box office.

I hear from those who have seen scraps of After the Fox, that the Peter Sellers-Victor Mature movie is hilarious. It figures. We all know how funny Sellers is, but Victor is said to have given the most comic performance of his career. It was also interesting to learn that Peter, who is determined he will never be ill again, refused to work in the picture more than four or five hours a day. That's what is called being smart.

Well, here's a director who realizes that George C. Scott may be a bit eccentric, but still one of the greatest actors we have. Norman Panama has signed George for The Big Brass, which will be made partly in London and the rest in Hollywood. Tony Curtis stars in the picture and will shoot for one day in London while he is there starring in You Just Kill Me, the fifth title for the comedy that started life as Till Death Do Us Part, then My Last Duchess. Arrivederci Baby, and You're Dead Right. I sort of get the idea that this is a comedy about death and this seems to be the trend in pictures today.

At the time Jayne Mansfield was giving birth to her fifth child in Los Angeles, ex-husband Mickey Hargitay, who fathered a few with Jayne herself, was in Manchester listening to the singing of his next wife, Marie Vincent.

New Artist Shows Collages

By INA D. D. UTHOFF

Flemming Jorgensen, though a comparatively recent addition to Canada's list of painters, has received recognition that is now national.

Trained in Denmark, he came to Victoria seven years ago and continued his studies in the studio of Hubert Siebner, well-known Victoria painter.

The present exhibition of his most recent work now hanging in the galleries of the Spencer Mansion, part of the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, dates back only a few months but shows a marked change in his style.

Over the years we have seen many examples of the popularity of the collage, but seldom has this medium been presented with such distinction as is shown in Jorgensen's composition built up in layers of tissue paper pasted onto a light board and treated with color, giving a luminosity to the reds which suggests an inward glow.

The bird motif is used in quite a few of the collages and in brush drawings, but Sentinel remains in one's mind as a little jewel.

However, it is this artist's oils which have brought him his recent successes, his moody use of a limited palette of black, muted white and luminous yellow-green. We find it in the distinguished canvas, Bush Country, and in a lesser way in Yellow Fields, both paintings finding ready buyers within the first hour of the showing.

Also, there is Spring Deluge, a smaller one of this group, and the more one sees of this, the more it gives out.

There is a depth of feeling shown here that is entirely absent in the five large oils recently executed in crude color. Apparently this is an experiment in a new direction, which may later surprise us by an added control of the scale.

In the main and north galleries of the new wing, the exhibition of the work of nine Canadians and Duncan de Krommeaux's collages are now open to the public. They will be reviewed shortly.

Thompson Attacks Grain Price

CAROLINE, Alta. (CP) — Social Credit leader Robert Thompson Thursday proposed the establishment of a feed grain authority similar to the Canadian Wheat Board to eliminate inequities in Canada's present feed-grain marketing system.

Speaking to about 60 persons in his Red Deer constituency, the Social Credit leader charged "somewhere along the line someone is getting a rake-off." He said the rake-off is evident in the seasonal fluctuation of feed-grain prices.

According to Mr. Thompson Canada annually purchases over $100,000,000 in feed-grain from the United States for consumption because "we don't have a satisfactory farm policy."

Reds Send Up 94th Satellite

MOSCOW (UPI) — Russia Thursday launched the 94th satellite of its Cosmos series designed to further exploration of space. Cosmos 94 carries instruments for further continuation of the program.

The last satellite of the series — Cosmos 93 — was placed into orbit Oct. 19.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ku Klux Klan members in Georgia have been taught how to burn homes and cars, bomb integrated department stores and wage guerrilla warfare, a congressional investigator charged Thursday.

Philip Manuel, a staff investigator for the house committee on un-American activities, made the charges while questioning Calvin Craig, Grand Dragon of the Georgia Klan. Craig repeatedly cited the fifth amendment guarantee against self-incrimination in refusing to answer.

Craig, 37, has been Georgia's Klan leader since February, 1961, according to the committee. Manuel said the instruction courses have been carried out with Craig's "full knowledge and approval."

Manuel said that in October, 1961, Craig, Imperial Wizard Robert Shelton and Georgia klansmen attended a class at the Macon, Ga., farm of O. C. Mixon. He said there have been many such meetings since, and specifically called attention to one in October, 1964, and to an announcement about a later one in January, 1965.

Manuel said in the 1961 and 1964 courses there were demonstrations on how to:

- Rig up booby traps and dynamite explosions that provide "three or four minutes' get-away time."
- Start "intense fires in automobiles, homes or buildings. The fire in an automobile can be so intense that anyone seated inside the car will have no chance to escape."
- Rig up an explosive device that the instructors said could be used in department stores that integrate their eating facilities. The instructor, according to Manuel, said the man planting the bomb might try on a suit in the store and leave the device in one of its pockets.
- Make explosives out of fertilizers found on farms.
- Solve guerrilla warfare problems and learn how to take over a radio station and power plant.
- Assemble and disassemble an M-1 rifle. Students also were taught how to use pistols and rifles.

Following the narration about "courses," Manuel read from the Klan's official charter in which the group described its purposes as "to teach patriotism and love of country" and said it was a social and fraternal organization that gave Christmas parties.

Manuel asked Craig how these conditions could be satisfied in light of what he had just read about the courses of instruction.

Craig refused to answer. Rep. Charles Weltner, D-Ga., asked Craig to explain a statement in a Klan circular distributed on Oct. 17. The circular, handed out at a Klan rally in Savannah, Ga., said "Georgia won its battle in the last national election, but the war was lost."

The grand dragon refused to reply to the question.

Georgia was one of five states that was carried last November by Sen. Barry M. Goldwater in the presidential election.

Weltner said he was drawing no political inference from the statement contained in the circular. But Rep. George Senner, D-Ariz., recalled that one witness last week, in describing a Klan rally, said a picture of Goldwater was prominently displayed.

Craig was dismissed at the close of the session and told to return on Nov. 5. The committee then adjourned until Monday.

Weltner had strongly recommended earlier in the day that Klan leaders be cited for contempt of congress for refusing to produce documents about the organization. He said a 1960 supreme court decision ruled that the fifth amendment did not extend to papers and records of an organization under congressional inquiry.

At a morning session of the hearing, a committee investigator charged that the grand dragon of the Alabama Klan got drunk in a Florida motel room and threatened to shoot his way into a restaurant to get breakfast.

Crippled Ship Examined

A damage survey of the beached Greek freighter Ekaterini G. is being carried out by Island Tug and Barge salvage experts.

The Victoria-based tug Sudbury II is remaining in the area until the survey is complete and it is known whether the battered hull is worth saving.

The Ekaterini G. was swept ashore after a tow line aboard a U.S. Navy tug snapped while the tug was pulling her into sheltered waters.

GAPING HOLE

The Sudbury was four hours away from rendezvous with the crippled ship after an eight-day run, when the rope parted.

The ship was holed from bow to midship when it was swept ashore. Early reports considered the hull a total structural loss.

Government Protests

Rezoning Plan Gets Drubbing

A proposal to rezone a block of land near the legislative precinct to allow construction of high-rise apartments was protested Thursday at a council meeting by the provincial government.

Speaking for the government, Deputy Minister of Public Works A. E. Webb said the high-density development would violate the understanding established at the time the precinct boundaries were set. It was then contemplated that high-rises would be kept at a distance in order that the Parliament Buildings would not be overshadowed.

PART OF RESERVE

The block where rezoning was contemplated (bounded by Young, Michigan and Toronto) should be regarded as part of a reserve, Mr. Webb said. As the province expanded, more space would be needed for government buildings and this should not be forgotten.

"Do you think you are asking enough? Now is the time to make decisions in this matter," said Mayor Wilson.

ANSWER NEEDED

James Mace, of Mace Homes and Investments, Ltd., one of the potential developers of the property, said things had reached the stage where they had to have an answer right away. Options had been extended on two occasions on some of the properties they have accumulated.

Realizing that the government had a case in the matter, said Mr. Mace, the properties have been offered to the province at a reasonable figure.

The city solicitor will try to get the developers and government representatives together and work out an arrangement within a few days.

Campaign Funds 'Corrupt'

Douglas Speaks to Packed House

By IAN ARROL

The real cause of political corruption is campaign funds, NDP leader T. C. Douglas told 1,500 in the Royal Theatre Thursday night.

"All matters now labelled political scandals refer to campaign funds."

Mr. Douglas said there would not be clean and honest government until legislation is passed requiring full and complete disclosure of campaign contributions to all political parties.

THEATRE FILLED

The theatre was filled at 7:45 p.m., 15 minutes before the meeting started. At 7:55 p.m., 100 were still waiting outside the closed doors.

A Student Union Building lounge packed by 180 students, greeted Mr. Douglas when he spoke at 2 p.m. at the University Victoria.

MAIN ISSUE

"The main issue in this election is a crisis of leadership," he told the students.

"I have travelled from the Pacific to the Atlantic four times in this election—and across Canada there is a malaise . . . no leadership . . . no sense of direction," said Mr. Douglas.

NEW ERA

In both speeches, he charged the old-line parties were unaware that "we are in a new era of human history."

"The Industrial Revolution replaced man's muscle with a machine."

"Today, automation and cybernation are replacing man himself as a minder of the machine," he said.

Direction for the new age is

John D Predicts Tory Majority

By RON COLLISTER

Colonist Ottawa Bureau

CHARLOTTETOWN, P.E.I.—A new, confident John Diefenbaker Thursday predicted he will form a majority government after Nov. 8 and charged that Prime Minister Pearson is now running scared.

The whole Diefenbaker campaign took a new direction as the Tory Tiger, whipped up by a chain of sell-out meetings,

Alaskan A-Blast Off Again

AMCHITKA ISLAND, Alaska (AP)—Explosion of a buried 80,000-ton thermo-

nuclear device was postponed again Thursday because the wind was blowing from the test site toward the control centre seven miles away.

The $10,000,000 test, designed to help distinguish nuclear blast shocks from natural earthquakes, was rescheduled for 2 p.m. PDT today.

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson disclosed Thursday an attempt will be made by January to orbit two manned spaceships a few days apart for an unprecedented no-contact rendezvous.

The crews may be able to see one another through the spacecraft windows. But there will be no attempt at docking or other actual contact and no space walks.

Apparently king-sized its encircle the plan.

Officials see a little better than a 50-50 chance of getting a pair of space capsules aloft, each with a two-man crew. But they are citing no odds on maneuvering them—twice, perhaps—to a point where they may be only feet apart while streaking through space at 18,000 miles an hour.

LONG FLIGHT PLANNED

If all goes well, Gemini 7 and its two-man crew will be rocketed aloft first on a 14-day endurance flight. Then Gemini 6—the craft that failed to get away on a space docking expedition last Monday—will be put up seven or eight days later with two more spacemen.

Royal Pen Will End Executions

LONDON (AP)—The House of Commons completed legislative action Thursday night on a bill to abolish the death penalty for murder in Britain.

It now goes to the Queen for her signature.

Final passage of the bill was foreshadowed in the last session of Parliament.

What the Commons did Thursday was adopt some amendments insisted on by the House of Lords. The major one of these was that judges should have discretion in making recommendations about life sentences.

Final Bid Close To Failure

SALISBURY (Reuters)

— British Prime Minister Wilson Thursday night gave the Rhodesian government his toughest warning yet on the consequences of an illegal seizure of independence by this British colony.

British sources said Wilson delivered the warning Thursday night at a dinner in the home of Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith, whose minority white government has threatened a unilateral declaration of independence.

Wilson, who has warned Britain will impose economic sanctions if Smith's government seizes independence, was reported to have told the Rhodesian prime minister any hopes of Rhodesia getting oil from Portugal in the event of a show-down are falsely based.

NEGRO RULE

Wilson gave the warning to Smith and his entire cabinet, the sources said.

Britain has refused to grant independence without assurances of eventual Negro rule.

Wilson warned the Rhodesian ministers neighboring Zambia, whose economy is closely linked to that of Rhodesia, would not be allowed to suffer in the event of a Rhodesian break with Britain.

ZAMBIA ASSURED

Smith, in a recent personal message to President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia, said Rhodesia will uphold all its undertakings toward its Central African neighbor, provided Zambia does not "initiate measures calculated to cause positive harm and damage, for political purposes, to the economy and stability of Rhodesia."

FAILURE CLOSE

Wilson also said he plans to fly back to London Saturday morning, a British source said.

Earlier Thursday night Wilson's 11th-hour bid seemed much closer to failure.

After three days of talks, including two lengthy sessions with each of the two restricted rival black African nationalist leaders, British officials said

Capital Master Plan Blueprints Downtown Revival

By A. H. MURPHY

If its downtown core is prosperous, Victoria is healthy, so get the people down there and make the business district bright enough to keep them.

This is one of the principal conclusions in the "Over-all Plan for Victoria," released to members of city council Thursday after 18 months' research and study by the Capital Region Planning Board.

Salient suggestions for the city's downtown core:

- Get roads into it.
- Provide plenty of parking in the right places.
- Keep it attractive and alive.

However, downtown is not the sole answer to a healthy city. Victoria's place in the region is exhaustively explored by the 84-page report which was formally received at a regular meeting of city council, and which will be dealt with further at a series of meetings opening with a dinner conference soon.

The importance of the region to the area is underlined by a table which shows that of 17 cities, Victoria has the lowest percentage of population compared to the surrounding metropolitan area.

There is no single answer to the health of a city, the report shows. It is a meld of parking, zoning, public works, capital spending and many other factors.

The over-all program, as envisaged by the report, would cost about $11,000,000.

The plan hinges to some extent on the implementation of the recent massive traffic study, also prepared by the Capital Region Planning Board, which recommends a freeway system from the north into the city and branching off to Victoria West, thus taking heavy traffic off Douglas and Government Streets.

A clear definition of the downtown district by means of zoning, pedestrian malls and perimeter parking is urged. There should be 2,600 more parking spaces by 1981, including the two new parking garages planned by the city.

Fast, frequent bus service to the centre of the city is a must, and an extensive urban renewal program should be undertaken.

This would include rehabilitation of Chinatown and immediate action on the beautification of Bastion Square. Semi-malls would be built on Broad Street, and an easement for pedestrian access along the waterfront south of Johnson Street.

Cathedral Hill precinct would be improved and a lower promenade built below

Lake Region

Taxes Cause Worry

LAKE COWICHAN—If this area becomes a regional district, 80 per cent of the land within its boundaries will be untaxable.

This land is under tree farm licence, and is exempt from taxation.

J. D. Baird, assistant deputy minister of municipal affairs, told Cowichan Lake Chamber of Commerce formation of a regional district would also mean higher policing costs.

ROAD UPKEEP

He said the district would also be responsible for road upkeep, with the exception of arterial highways.

Mr. Baird said "first you must decide what services you are going to offer, what services the residents want, how much services will cost, and what taxable resources are available."

He said the whole Cowichan Lake district is 10 times larger than the sprawling municipality of North Cowichan.

TWO MILLS

Mr. Baird pointed out North Cowichan has two large pulp mills within its boundaries which have a high taxable assessed value.

Mr. Baird suggested "try to cut down on the size of your proposed municipality. It is best to have the smallest area possible, and to keep within economic possibilities."

In 1966, the village of Lake Cowichan may reach the status of a town, and Mr. Baird said it would be possible for the town to extend its boundaries to include other areas.

SOME PROBLEMS

Mr. Baird said the brightest picture to date is 1965 legislation which will provide for the formation of regional districts.

"This could be the solution to some of the problems in this area," he said.

He suggested a district committee be formed to plan the boundaries to include a minimum of acreage.

"School District 66 is far too large an area to cover," he said. "Thousands of acres are not populated."

Mr. Baird recommended the boundaries include Lake Cowichan, Youbou, Honeymoon Bay and Mesachie Lake, to cover the three large sawmills in the area.

He said "when you have practical boundaries to work with, then we can decide on a budget and the available resources."

Mrs. Miller points to John's wound

Leg Operation Soon

Boy Back to School With Slug Still In

LADYSMITH — John Miller, 14, 565 High Street, was back at school Thursday morning.

Monday afternoon he was hit by a fragment of rock or metal from a ricochet bullet near Ladysmith High School.

He owns a .22, 30-30 and a shotgun, and he learned to handle weapons when he belonged to the army cadets.

His mother said "Of course, he is not allowed to take out the guns when he is by himself, only when his father takes him hunting."

John's father is the skipper of a small tugboat at Chemainus.

Mrs. Miller said her boy, one of three, loves to go hunting and fishing and he looked forward to go hunting this weekend with his dad.

However, it will take a few weeks until his leg is completely well again.

FERN-PICKERS

Mrs. Miller was told by the doctor the fragment of rock or metal in his leg below the knee will not be removed for some days to prevent the possible damage to a muscle.

Another pastime of the youngster, picking fern for florists, will also have to wait for a while.

Mrs. Miller said since her boy was hit Monday "we have not heard any shooting."

PELLETS LAND

Before, shots being fired in that vicinity was common.

"Nobody was hurt and you don't report every shot you hear to the police," she said.

Some time ago one of her neighbors had shotgun pellets land in her yard.

He Was Hiding Under Bed

'I Offered Coffee' But Burglar Fled

By KLAUS MUENTER

LADYSMITH — Ever look under your bed for burglars?

Elderly Mrs. Claribel Cullum, 8 Esplanade, looked under her bed and found a burglar Wednesday night.

"I was sorry for him," said 76-year-old Mrs. Cullum.

She had returned to her home after visiting with her next door neighbor Mrs. Freda Wilson.

It was an hour before midnight. She walked into her bedroom and pulled the blind down.

Mrs. Cullum walked back into the living room and settled down with a book.

The telephone rang. It was Mrs. Wilson, and the first words she said were "are you all right?"

Mrs. Wilson said something "odd" was going on at the bedroom window. Mrs. Cullum went to the bedroom and found the window open and the blind up.

She looked, and found the man underneath her bed. She told him to come; he did not move.

"Finally I said if I get my gun you will come out. He crawled out, and I got hold of his arm."

HE FLED

She said the man smelled of liquor and he said he was cold. "I offered to make him some coffee and food."

"He had no shoes on and I told him I would get the flashlight so we could look for his shoes, and while I was gone to get the flashlight he fled through the front door."

Not quite two hours later the local three-man RCMP detachment, with two officers from Nanaimo and two from Chemainus, arrested a 21-year-old, North Vancouver man aboard a boat tied up at a Ladysmith wharf.

Thursday afternoon Richard Charles Carter appeared in police court and was remanded until today without election of plea.

The charge against him is breaking and entering with intent.

NOT AFRAID

Mrs. Cullum has been living in the old house by herself for the past 23 years, and never anything like that had happened to her.

She came to Ladysmith 40 years ago.

She said "I was not afraid of him, but he obviously was frightened."

Her son Bill visited Thursday while police were still carrying out investigations.

FAMILY AWAY

Bill Cullum is a sawmill worker at Chemainus.

Her daughter Mrs. N. C. Foster is a high school teacher at Chemainus.

One of her sons, Percy is a radar inspector presently in Bavaria, Germany and another son Arthur is a high school teacher at Revelstoke.

The minister referred to British Columbia as the pulp capital of the world.

He claimed the province will never have a hard time selling pulp, as suggested by Macmillan Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. official J. V. Clyne.

GANGES — School trustees were elected in the Gulf Islands recently.

There was only one change, Mrs. Elizabeth Ross replaced J. R. Clarke, Mayne Island.

Others elected for two-year terms: J. M. Campbell, board chairman; Saturna; George Heinke, vice-chairman, North Salt Spring; Dr. T. L. Jansch, North Salt Spring; and R. M. Patterson, South Salt Spring.

Board members not up for election this year are C. P. Moat and A. M. Sharp, North Salt Spring; L. J. Armstrong, Pender Island; and D. A. New, Galiano.

Gulf Islands district school population is now 597, with 498 attending the Salt Spring Island school. Teaching staff totals 27, with 19 in the Salt Spring school.

Society President Sees Biggest Empire Day Ever

NANAIMO — Logger sports and the largest church service in the history of Nanaimo are two items the Empire Day Celebration Society hopes to put on in 1966.

Thursday night Les Mottishaw was re-elected president of the society, and announced he is trying to bring back logger sports to May 24 celebrations here.

He also said a letter will go to the Nanaimo Ministerial Association proposing a non-denominational service in the Civic Arena.

Next year, with encouragement from the city's Centennial Committee, a five-day celebration is planned to commemorate the 1966 joining of Vancouver Island with Mainland B.C. into one province.

Rotary club again offered to hold its pancake breakfast, Legion, Moose and Gyro all of tered help. Native Daughters will again be asked to look after the queen crowning, and Cedar Valley Riding Club promised to hold a horse show.

Mr. Mottishaw said already he has had an enquiry from a 10-piece Seattle band to enter the parade.

Executive Predicts Pulp Boom

CAMPBELL RIVER — The market for B.C. pulp and paper will expand, according to J. V. Christensen, president of Tahsis Company.

His firm is showing its confidence in his prediction by building a $60,000 bleached kraft pulp mill at Gold River.

He told a chamber of commerce meeting here Thursday he does not agree with warnings of some industry leaders that there is a danger of over-production.

"If such warnings were taken at face value the world would come to a standstill."

Police Name Car Victim

COURTENAY — The name of a man killed in a motor vehicle accident north of Courtenay Wednesday night was released Thursday by RCMP. He is Wilfred Alexander Robertson of Richmond, age 42.

The second man injured was Robert James Hume Courtney Street, Victoria. Mr. Hume was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital. His injuries are not believed serious.

The driver of the car was Mahlon Vauthrien of Cobble Hill.

Feather-Pillow Fight

No Big Issues in Alberni

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI—One long-time party worker said wistfully "this campaign is like fighting a feather pillow. No one comes out with much that's controversial."

That's the picture in Comox-Alberni, as five sincere men seem to be singing variations of the same song.

For example all candidates apparently agree some form of medicare should be instituted, and the variation lies in degree of coverage.

WELL-KNOWN

The determining factor in the campaign will not be policies, but knowledge of the candidates.

Few voters would know Sacred Jean Gagnon or Tory Bill Macadam if they met them, but most know Tom Barnett, NDP member of the last parliament, and almost everyone in the Alberni Valley portion of the constituency knows former Port Alberni mayor Loran Jordan, the Liberal candidate.

NEVER!

But Mr. Jordan's record as mayor may not help him as much as he thinks.

"Never!" said one elderly lady fervently, when asked whether she would vote for Mr. Jordan.

"He didn't listen to our petition about the Civic Arena, he wouldn't listen to us if he was in Ottawa."

Mr. Barnett, well-known in the cities through his long association with labor and politics, is almost better known in the boondocks.

FISH BOATS

When not in Ottawa he has made a practice of popping in and out of remote villages and logging camps, making himself at home in fish boats and chatting with councillors of Indian settlements.

Some people feel Liberal leader Pearson would have done a better job if he hadn't had John Diefenbaker in opposition.

Many voters who sympathize with the Tory chief, still feel he didn't accomplish enough when he had a big majority.

NOT POPULAR

Social Credit is not particularly popular in the Alberni section of the riding, because of what some residents feel is failure to undertake needed provincial projects by the Bennett government.

Even many who vote Sacred provincially seem reluctant to cast their votes the same way nationally.

Alex MacKenzie, the independent, is apparently better known here as a neighbor than as a politician, and has been unable to make the costly radio and newspaper appeals of the parties.

Bill Macadam, a Campbell

River man, is not well-known in the Alberni, which have no Tory tradition anyway.

Mr. Diefenbaker appears to be harming whatever chance the well-spoken young candidate has.

While many women seem to be sympathetic to the Conservative leader, just as many men are hostile.

NOT THERE

It appears this time around the old-line parties have been too long without effective organization to beat the smooth-running NDP organization in this constituency.

Several people not prone to NDP policy remember that when the tidal wave struck, Tommy Douglas was on the scene within 48 hours, while Resources Minister Laing did not appear for several weeks.

Douglas Speaks to Packed House

Election Threat in 1966

Pearson 'Arrogance' Rapped by Douglas

New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas said Thursday Prime Minister Pearson's threat of another election in 1966 if he fails to get a majority this year "must surely be unmatched for arrogance in Canadian constitutional history." (See Page 2)

Mr. Pearson was quoted as telling party workers in a Liberal campaign headquarters in Toronto Thursday that if the Grits do not win a majority "there will be another election next year."

Thursday, the wiry NDP leader said: "Having been persuaded by his brains trust to call the election, the prime minister has evidently come to the conclusion that his brains trust, as usual, was wrong."

IN OPPOSITION
"The Canadian people are not likely to give the Liberals a majority on the basis of their record. In fact, they are likely to return them to opposition," he said.

SANCTIONS SURE WILSON WARNS

Primate Wins Allies In Face of Barrage

LONDON (CP)—Most Rev. Michael Ramsey, archbishop of Canterbury and Anglican primate of all England, stuck by his guns Thursday and even gained some allies in the face of a furious verbal seige.

The theologian provoked the wrath of Conservative politicians, the Tory press and a few fellow churchmen by stating publicly non-pacifist Christians should be prepared to back the British government in preventing a seizure of power by the white minority in Rhodesia—even in the event that force became necessary.

But Thursday, 26 Labor and Liberal members of Parliament rallied to Ramsey's support in a telegram congratulating the archbishop and the council of churches "on your excellent and courageous stand over Rhodesia."
